Link Gortner left yesterday, for Winlock, W. T., where he has received a situation in a saw mill.

Mr. W. L. Bodle, whose funeral took place yesterday afternoon, at Carlton, was attended by a delegation of Masons and Grand Army men, from this place. The body was interred at North Yamhill.

J. J. Collard's heavy truck broke down this morning, within a few feet of this office. It is supposed that Mr. Collard felt badly for the poor editor, knowing news was scarce, and so endeavored to help him out.

M. U. Gortner has accepted a position for a large wholesale house in Portland, as a commercial traveler. Mr. G. is well and favorably known in western Oregon, and we bespeak success for him in this new undertaking.

We are indebted to Mrs. A. J. Apperson and Mrs. B. F. Fuller, for a plate of excellent taffy and a basket of splendid winter apples. The ladies know what the printers like.

The City Grocery Store of Baxter & Rogers is the place to replenish your larder. They are selling only fresh groceries, and these at bed rock prices. Give them a trial order.

Joggles read yesterday of a wash out caused by the rain. But he says there was a wash out last Monday, caused by there being no rain that day. It was the wash out the clothes line in the back yard, which the week before had to be hung in the wood shed.

The Portland Democrat says that Gov. Penoyer has concluded not to stand on technicalities, but to confirm if necessary the election of the three republican fish commissioners who were elected by the legislature on the last day of the session, and before the law was approved by the governor or in force at all. He will, if desired, issue commissions to them and in this way confirm their defective title.

A. Stinet & Co.

Telegram.

A. Stinet, of Corvallis, advertised a short time ago that he would prosecute any man who furnished him with whisky. It seems that he did not put saloon keepers on the defensive quite soon enough, as the Benton Leader says his family, a wife and four helpless children, are to be turned into the street, he having failed for a number of months to pay the rent of the roof that shelters them, a matter of $2.50 per month. For the abject misery of such a case as this there is no possible remedy in law. The enactment of a law that would put such men to work under the surveillance of proper authorities for the benefit of the state or county, and give of his earning for the support and education of his children, might be beneficial, but it would interfere with that glorious principle of "personal liberty," concerning which none make so loud an outcry as those who are totally incapable of using it judiciously.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Wallace stopped at B. F. Fullers, where twenty-two of their relatives gathered and gave them a genuine surprise. Apples, pop corn and taffy were enjoyed and a pleasant evening was spent. All wishing them a pleasant trip to Michigan, the land of their birth, also a safe return home. They left to-day on the morning train. They delayed going one day waiting for parties from Corvallis to accompany them.

Card of Thanks.

CARLTON, Mch., 17, 1887.

The family and relatives of the late William C. Bodle wish to thank the citizens of this place for the extreme kindness shown them in their hours of affliction and bereavement. They also extend their sincere thanks to the members of the G. A. R. of McMinnville and North Yamhill for their kindness and attendance in paying the last tribute to a departed husband, father and comrade.

Miss Belle Johnson, teacher of music in McMinnville and at McMinnville college. Residence corner of Second and C Streets.

Nearly every railroad company is now experimenting with patent car heaters. Before another winter appears the death-dealing stove should be permanently side tracked.

A Cleveland lawyer made such an eloquent address to the jury in a murder case that he set not only the court, jury and spectators to crying, but actually wept himself. At sight of him in tears a few women fainted away and one man had an epileptic fit.

Joseph Smith of Portland, made friends in this city a hurried visit, leaving for home yesterday. Jo. is one of the best men alive, and whenever a substantial structure was needed in the works of the old Oregon Steam Navigation company, and later on for years, he was called to superintend its construction.

"How styles have changed since I was a girl," writes an old lady to the Louisville Post, "when I was young," she continues, "we used to wear our dresses up to the neck, and gloves with only one button. Now they wear gloves up to the neck, and only one button on the dress. I don't see how a woman can retain her modesty or be innately refined if she goes in the presence of men bare nearly to the waist. Such costumes may be all very well for the ballet and for prize ring fighters, but it is demoralizing for young women. My time is nearly up, but I really would like to come back into this world in sixty or seventy years from now, just to see how women will dress. If they keep on reducing the extent of their clothes at the same rate they have in the last half century, they won't have much of anything on by that time."

Quarterly meeting services will be held at the M. E. church on Saturday and Sunday next, March 19 and 20 by Rev. M. C. Wire, of Salem, Ore. services at 2 p. m. Saturday; services also at 7 p. m. Preaching by Mr. Wire. The usual quarterly meeting services on Sunday. Mr Wire is a stranger to the people of McMinnville. He is an able preacher. All are cordially invited to attend these services.
