PORTER, MULLINS CASE INCORRECTLY REPORTED

The case of Les Mullins, versus Dave Porter, defendant in an assault case, was brought to light again this week because of an erroneous report that Mullins was a partner in the Viv's steak house cafe with Porter. Porter reported Mullins is owner of the building in which the establishment is located, while Porter's partner is Iris Hogate. Cause of the attack, Porter said, was due to Mullins forced entrance into the eating place after closing hours. Mullins has been, by court order, refused admittance to the steak house unless accompanied by a police officer, Porter added.

Porter was lodged in the Marion county jail following the assault charge filed by Mullins, and released on $500 bail.

Franklin Ragsdale North Canyon-- Named to Run For Legion Spot

Franklin Ragsdale has been nominated for the position of Department Commander of the American Legion by the Mill City post, No. 159, it was announced recently by Dr. David J. Ferguson, adjutant of the local post. In 1918, while still in France following the peace to hostilities, Ragsdale was taken in as a charter member of the Legion.

The local post went over the top in a membership drive carried on in the state, Dr. Ferguson stated.

President Says--

Democratic Senator Magnuson of Washington state said the reclamation bureau and army engineers had requested somewhat more for the basin, but lower construction costs had warranted cuts in the allocations.

He added if needs were not met by the budget requests, he, and it was reported other Northwest congressmen, would not hesitate to ask for additional funds.

A request for $62,000,000 was made for the basin, he stated, while the two groups had asked for $20,000,000 for construction of the Chief Joseph dam in Washington state. The basin would be given $53,355,000 for its needs during the fiscal year, through the budget plan, while Chief Joseph would be given a $17,500,000 appropriation.

It is expected to have the Detroit and McNary dams in Oregon in operation by 1953, Hungry Horse dam in Montana going by 1952, and six to-be-added generators at Grand Coulee dam in northern Washington operating sometime in 1951. This would add 1,200,000 kilowatts to the present output of electrical energy from the Pacific Northwest, now suffering from power shortages.

1950 Telephone Directory Out This Month

The new 1950 telephone directory is scheduled for delivery sometime after January 30 by the local telephone exchange, it was reported this week.

Special feature of the new book will be an individual cover for each town with each particular town listed in the front of the book. Other towns served by the Mutual Telephone service will be listed following the listing of the town where the directory appears. Novel divider covers will separate each town.

Inclusion of the Idanha and Detroit areas will be listed in this new directory, it was reported.

Residents in the Stayton, Aumsville, Turner, Mehama, Lyons, Scio, Detroit, Idanha and Mill City vicinity who are planning to install new telephones are urged to do so now so as to have their names included in the listing.

Businesses wishing to place ads in the new book are requested to telephone their local exchange.

Power Lines--

Wednesday night's new storm again destroyed some of the repair work already accomplished. A tree blown down over lines between Mill City and Gates crippled service through the eastern community to Detroit, severing outside communication from that area.

Power lines blown across telephone circuits also hampered communications. A heavy snowstorm in the Detroit area and east completely spoiled repairs made there earlier. More than 30 inches of snow was reported on the Santiam pass that was added by the Wednesday storm. This, coupled with previous snowdrifts, slowed traffic considerably.

Lines to the CBI housing project were down, Mrs. Mason said, but service was not severed, although many branches and snow covered the equipment.

Mrs. Mason added this is the first time she has seen the toll service out for such an extended period since she came here 28 years ago. According to Mrs. Alta Bodeker, Lyons operator since 1935, telephone equipment suffered more devastation during this
