Cook School Attracts M C Women

Over 175 women gathered at the Mill City theatre Friday, February 24th to garner tips on cooking, and to take home a host of prizes.

Present at the cooking school which was sponsored by the General Electric and presented by Jenkins Hardware, were the home economics classes from the Gates and Mill City high school. The cooking school, under the direction of graduate home economist Betty Jane Christensen and Celia Lee, introduced new cooking ideas centered around the use of new spices and seasoning salts. During the war when many common spices were unavailable manufacturers were forced to present new spices. The new products proved so profitable the various companies have felt it worth while to teach housewives how to use them.

Mr. R.E. Groch, from the Crescent foods, expressed his opinion that the woman from the smaller communities, such as Mill City, were more responsive to cooking aids and new ideas.

The home economist were not inclined to talk only in theory but actually demonstrated their ability to prove their cooking methods by preparing cakes, rolls, steaks, etc. before the interested crowd.

All of the products cooked during the afternoon were given away in a drawing as were many other lovely gifts, given by Crown Mills, Crescent Foods, and Jenkins Hardware. All cooking was done on the General Electric ranges. The salads, steaks, rolls, cakes, flours, spices, and appliances were given to Mesdames, Dale Stubbs, Robert Veness, Lincoln Hennes, Burt Stubbs, W.R. Hutchinson, June Phillips, E.F. Schroeder, Arch Bates, Glen Ermen, J.C. Watt, Olivia Caplinger, Dick Painter, Ted Burton, Jo Jaquin, Marleen Verbeck, Betty Cree, Elnora Albright, Ida Fleetwood, E.D. Cooke, Jean Lake, Walter Mitchell, Keith Grimes, Isabelle Mason, Goldie Sorenson, Arthur Bassett, Joan Kunkle, Sonny Hoffman, R.V. Wheeler, Barbara Barton, Robert Cooper, Joan Johnson, Alona Daly, Mrs. Jepson, and Ela Hadwell. The prizes were awarded by Hugh Brisbane.

Another cooking school is planned for this fall.

WHAT TO DO NOW?

George Steffy, who ran a want add in last week's Enterprise, believes that it pays to advertise. When he advertised for a piano he had excellent results. One problem though, now he has to figure how to get the piano up the stairway into his house. Perhaps he should advertise for a piano mover.
