Gates Women's Club To Handle Dinner

Gates—Ladies of the Gates Women's club voted last Thursday to assist the canyon-wide dinner to be given at the Mill City high school September 12.

Plans were made and committees appointed by the club to handle arrangements for the dinner itself which is heralded as a gigantic get-together sponsored by the Mill City chamber of commerce's industrial committee. The dinner will bring together local businessmen, interested citizens and prominent civilian and military authorities on natural resources. The meeting is keyed to kick off a program to map the canyon's natural and man-made resources with an end of attracting industrial firms and business establishments into the canyon.

Robert Veness, president of the Mill City chamber of commerce, invited the ladies to participate in the dinner-meeting by preparing and serving the dinner.

The Gates Women's club acknowledged the gift of a U. S. savings bond valued at $249 from Ned Richards and Harold Wilson. The bond was purchased during World War II through the sale of scrap iron. Also tossed into the club house building fund was a $25 donation from the Mill City chamber of commerce. The money was part of the profit earned at the July Queen's dance in the Gates gym. The money from the bond will be devoted to putting a roof on the proposed club house.

Mrs. Wilson Park presided over the meeting in the absence of club president, Mrs. Edward Chance.

Forty percent of the 1950 graduating class of Oregon State were married.

Henrietta Downer Weds Frank Basl

The St. Patrick's church of Lyons was the scene of a beautiful late summer wedding Thursday morning, August 10.

Miss Henrietta Downer daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hallie Downer of Me-hama, was united in marriage to George Basl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Basl of Stayton. Rev. Father Schneider performed the ceremony at 9:30 in the morning before an altar decked with summer flowers.

The bride was attired in a white slipper satin gown, with drop shoulder trimmed with lace and nylon net yoke with finger tip lace, trimmed veil with pearlized head dress. She carried a bouquet of pink rose buds.

Maid of honor was Miss Betty Hall attired in robin egg blue taffeta. She carried a nosegay of rosebuds. Bridesmaids were her sister Mrs. Darlene Goodell who wore pink organza, and Miss Bonnetta Bowers in pink marquisette. Their headdress was of rose buds. They carried rosebud bouquets. Little Carol Downer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Downer was flower girl. She wore a floor length dress of yellow veil and carried a basket of mixed flowers with large satin bow. Ring bearer was little Alfred Basl. Richard Basl stood as best man for his brother. Ushers were his cousins James and Lawrence Basl. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The wedding music was played by Miss Josephine Brand of Stayton. High mass was sung by Mrs. Lawrence Pietrok and Miss Brand.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Downer chose a decia brown dress with dark brown accessories. Mrs. Basl attended her son's wedding in a raspberry colored two piece dress. They both wore orchid corsages.

Following the wedding a dinner was served at the grange hall to approximately 120 guests. A beautiful wedding cake centered the table. Mrs. Dallas Franklin, Mrs. Monroe Walker and Mrs. Chet Royce, prepared the dinner served by Miss Bonnie Peregory, Miss Hilda Calkins, Miss Betty Skinner, Miss Betty King and Miss Berniece Bowers. A reception followed at 3 o'clock. The wedding cake was cut by Mrs. James Neelson. Mrs. Ralph Downer was in charge of the guest book. First Flowers, Then Fruit; Apple Comes After Bouquet Fruit follows the flower in nature, so perhaps it is not entirely a coincidence, but Spencer B. Apple has succeeded A. G. B. Bouquet in the vegetable crops section of the horticulture department at Oregon State college.

Professor Bouquet retired July 1 after serving as professor of vegetable crops for 14 years. Appointment of Mr. Apple as associate professor of horticulture in charge of vegetable crops has been announced by Dean F. A. Schoenfeld.

A graduate of Texas A. & M. college, where he also obtained his master's degree, Professor Apple has taken additional graduate study at Iowa state, Cornell and Washington State college.

HAVE A BETTER KITCHEN

Any homemaker will affirm the fact that nothing is more exasperating than lack of proper storage space in the kitchen. Yet, kitchen planners say this is one of the most common kitchen difficulties.

There is no "pat" answer to the problem, because kitchen rooms differ so widely in size and architectural arrangement. But the proper location of base and wall storage cabinets in relation to the cabinet sink, range and refrigerator goes a long way toward easing the homemaker's work. These are the areas in which convenient storage of utensils and supplies is most badly needed.

Modern kitchen equipment is designed to provide this needed space. Base cabinets are made in such a wide variety of sizes (generally from 15" to 36" in width) that there is room in nearly any kitchen for at least one unit in each area. These cabinets have both drawers and shelves in which to keep pots, pans, smaller utensils and food supplies. And the cabinet tops, of course, provide the work surface.

Wall surface above the base units should be filled with shelved wall cabinets for storage of other supplies, as well as dishes.

A new cabinet designed to help solve the storage problem is one that uses frequently wasted corner space in an L-shape and U-shape kitchen. This cabinet has three circular shelves, each 22" in diameter, which hold a large number of food articles. One homemaker reported that she is able to store 75 items of canned and boxed foods in this cabinet. The shelves turn easily on a ball bearing and the wanted items are brought to the front with just a flip of the finger. A back panel prevents the stored goods from falling into the area in back of the cabinet.

Former Missourians Plan Picnic for Next Sunday

There will be prizes for the largest family present and for the oldest gentleman and lady. Joseph E. Harvey will deliver the address of welcome. The picnic dinner is scheduled for 12:15 p.m. Passes will be picked up at the west gate. Each picnicker is to bring his own coffee and dinner.

ALASKAN TRAVELERS RETURN

Lyons—Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Stevens and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Downing returned home Sunday after a month's visit in Alaska. They also visited Fairbanks and Anchorage, reporting beautiful scenery, and wonderful gardens, but the large trees they talk about are only about ten inches through, and the water was very poor. All in all guess they were glad to get back to dear old Oregon.

In 1948, 239 Oregon traffic accidents involved school buses, but in 1949 the number dropped to 135.

Sweets Suggested For Kid Parties

As one means of restoring the old family circle, Miss Agnes Kolshorn, Oregon state extension nutrition specialist, suggests enticing the youngsters with sweets from Oregon products.

Tested recipes included peach creams, golden apricot balls, candied fresh mint leaves, nut and date creams, filbert chocolate taffy, chery divinity and stuffed, sliced prunes, peaches, figs and apricots.

Hostesses will find that fresh mint leaves glazed in egg whites and sugar will provide a refreshing accompaniment to iced summer punch. Dried fruit candies can be served as company confections or as a dessert after a family meal, Miss Kolshorn reports.

Peach or Apricot Creamy Candy

½ cup diced dried peaches or apricots.
1 cup water.
2 cups sugar.
1 cup milk.
dash salt.
1 tablespoon butter.
½ cup finely chopped filberts or walnuts.

In a small kettle, cook diced dried fruit in water until fruit is soft and water is absorbed. In a larger kettle, cook sugar and milk to soft boil stage (236 degrees F.) stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Add dried fruit and cook until soft boil stage is reached again. Add butter, salt and nuts. Cool. Beat until it is less sticky and somewhat creamy. Turn onto waxed paper covered with powdered sugar or finely chopped nuts. Shape into balls or into rolls about ¾ inches in diameter. Let rolls set before slicing.

Female flies lay 100 to 150 eggs.
