Scouting Needs Your Help

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, under proper supervision, are an asset to any community in which they may reside. Mill City is no exception on this score. Mill City male and female adults are needed for this guidance—NOW!

This week the Mill City PTA forthrightly sponsored a visit of an important Scout executive, who carefully outlined a course of action for this community. Why not build quickly on this PTA Scouting interest foundation?

Today there must be established a convenient meeting place where the worthwhile projects of Scouting can be pursued unhampered by outsiders.

Mill City citizens have reached down into their pocketbooks and labored with their hands in times past in providing the means whereby its boys and girls could learn the ways of Scouting.

Residents speak of having constructed, as a community project, Scout club houses in a central location in Mill City. The sands of time apparently have erased the results of this project and much of the spirit nurturing Scouting. It is high time that recognition is given to the fact that from youth civilization draws the vital breath of creativeness.

World Government?

The League of Nations was a noble experiment which failed to bring world government. The United Nations was on the brink of collapse until many Nations of the World, following our leadership, united behind the U.N. in a sincere effort towards world peace. Everything done in this latest crisis is voluntary. There is nothing to force other lands to send soldiers, ships, and supplies to deal with an aggressor nation. This is not World Government anymore than the action taken in the last war by the victorious Allies or by the defeated Axis Powers.

The only sure way that permanent peace can be guaranteed is through World Government. History bears out this statement. Only during the Roman Empire rule of the known world was there any extended period of peace. But are we, as individuals and as a group, ready for this thing called, "World Government"? To us, as individuals, it will mean that we will become less important. Our vote will count no more than that of a man in China, France, or the Union of South Africa. No longer will we have an Army, Navy, or Marine Corps. No longer will there be a high tariff to protect manufacturers and farmers. No longer will the worker be protected in his job by immigration quotas. All this means that our standard of living will fall somewhere near the standard of the other peoples of the world.

It is a high price to pay for peace. Is the price too high? Out of the first World War came the League of Nations, a step toward the ultimate goal. From the second World War the United Nations was born, a further step to the goal of World Government.

If there is a third World War, there will be only one dominant power which will rule the world in much the same manner as in the time of the old Roman Empire. Will it be necessary to have this war, the greatest of all, in order to secure lasting peace?

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Friendship—Four Thousand Miles Apart

Never quite got the hang of how to play chess myself, but I'll say this for the game—it started one of the strongest friendships I know of; between Dad Wilson in our town and a fellow in Sudbury, England.

The two of them have never met or seen each other—but for eight or nine years they've been playing chess by mail together. Dad puzzles over the Englishman's latest letter, takes a couple of days to think it over, and then airmails a chart of his next move.

Dad always thinks best with a mellow glass of beer beside his chessboard. And the fellow in England writes that he does the same. "Almost as if we were in the same room," says Dad contentedly.

From where I sit, you can talk about diplomacy and foreign policy, but it's often little friendly things—like a game of chess or a glass of beer—that can make for tolerance and understanding . . . between people of different nations, between folks here at home!
