MEHAMA

By JEAN ROBERTS

Metal hats, which became necessary equipment in shipyards during the war, have since been recommended for loggers by the State industrial accident commission.

Just as caulks have long been necessary equipment, so also will metal hats become a "must" before long, says A. Matherly, safety man.

Several logging operators have posted signs to the effect that all workers with the exception of the "cat skinner" and "donkey puncher" must wear the hats for safety reasons.

Although many companies have long provided the steel helmets for the cutting crews, many men still refuse their use even if the workers' protection is stressed.

It is reported that a safety man, who was describing the merits of a "tin" hat, invited a blow on his helmeted head by a logger using a tree limb. Needless to say a blow was delivered that almost drove him into the ground!

Although bean growers, in this area, are satisfied with warm days many other workers are wishing for rain. Timber workers forced to "hoot-owl" because of the extended dry spell are not in favor of missing their morning sleep.

Truck drivers plagued by rough gravel roads which cannot be maintained until it rains, are having difficulty keeping trucks in repair. One truck driver, plagued with a disabled truck, claims that a vehicle could be assembled from broken parts shed by trucks driving the Elkhorn road.

Prospector's Rusty Shovel Stirs Area

By JEAN ROBERTS

A rusty, prospector's shovel, recently found by timber fallers, Harley Scott and Frank Crowther, on the ridge separating Mill City and Elkhorn and leading to Mt. Horeb, and has revived stories of the quest for the "Lost Gold Mine", in that area years ago.

This search was conducted by Cap Smith, the first Elkhorn settler. Riding an old mule named Nig, Cap Smith traveled the ridge to the summit of Mt. Horeb several times a year.

"That's as near to Heaven as I'll ever get", he was fond of saying as he named Mt. Horeb, derived from the Biblical mountain Hor, burial place of the prophet, Aaron.

Much of Cap's time was spent searching for a "Lost Gold Mine", which according to his map was on the summit of Horeb. The map clearly drawn showed an old Indian trail up the ridge with different streams and rocks. Cap Smith was elated when he found the ridges corresponding to those on his map. His search always ended however, at two rocks that were so close together a man could barely pass between them. These rocks were the last landmarks he could distinguish from the map he carried. Convinced that he was not far from the "Lost Gold Mine", he spent much time searching and searching.

He paused from prospecting for a time and homesteaded a flat piece of land in the Elkhorn valley, now known as the Bickett farm.

The quest for valuable ore deposits in rock ledges, or the search for a gold pocket in a creek bed, is fast becoming an interesting side line for many persons in this area.

Bill Hayes, a log truck driver has the cab of his truck piled full of odd looking rocks some of which have different ore deposits clearly visible. Equipped also with a Gieger counter, he hopes some day he can stumble upon uranium ore.

Prospectors have come and gone but the tales of lost gold mines and the promise of other valuable minerals still lives on.

IDANHA

By MRS. REBA SNYDER

Idanha Lumber Company mill employees and neighbors, 24 in number, gathered at the Norman Garbutt home at about 10:00 p.m. Wednesday for an old-fashioned charivari. Two guns, tin cans, pails and "what-have-you" were used in the noise making. Those who weren't present were most assuredly awake.

Mrs. James McKinney and new son, Travis Lynn, returned home from the Salem Memorial hospital Saturday. Both mother and the week-old baby are doing nicely.

Vacational Bible school for a one week period will be held at the Idanha Community church. Miss Anne Hamm of Dallas will be in charge, Monday, August 20. Children should take their noon lunch since classes run from 9:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Children between the ages of four and fourteen are cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schram received word this week that their son, John, had died. They left Monday morning for Klamath Falls, where the son had been living. No particulars of his death are known at this time.

Dick Woodward was taken to the Salem General hospital, Friday for treatment of an abscess of the inner ear. It was thought he would return home Tuesday.

Doris Ann Faulkner, Cottage Grove, has for the past week been a guest in

KOREA

Mrs. Roberta Ray of Idanha, among the first 10 having their chests x-rayed in Idanha during the recent 100% x-ray survey, was naturally among the first getting the results. Here Mrs. Nancy Monroe, postal clerk, is handing Mrs. Ray the familiar "good news" x-ray card. Standing behind Mrs. Ray is Mayor T. C. Haseman of Idanha, who was "number one citizen" in the x-ray survey in Idanha which set a high record in the number of citizens being x-rayed. Mrs. Monroe also was among the first 10 x-rayed in Idanha. (Photo courtesy of Capital Journal)

The results of an x-ray reading are something worth sharing with others, be the results satisfactory or otherwise. Mrs. Roberta Ray is happy about her "satisfactory" card and shows it as she compares notes with Mayor T. C. Haseman of Idanha. A true reporter, Mrs. Reba Snyder, Mill City Enterprise correspondent, is getting first hand the reactions of those who took an active part in the 100% x-ray program. Mrs. Snyder, Mayor Haseman, Mrs. Eldon McIntosh and many others did a fine job of "knuckle-bending" in Idanha, because citizens turned out in force for their x-ray picture, results prove. Wilbur Rice of McMinnville was a caller in the home of his brother-in-law, Frank New, and family last Thursday night. Eva New and Mrs. Charles Cannon were home for a day's rest from the Hammer bean field near Stayton.

Sunday guests in the James Gordon home were her niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Hall, of Vernona and her sister, husband and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Van-Kleeck, of Beaverton.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Garbutt were weekend guests in Springfield at the home of her father, Lyle Smith, and family.

Harold Ray, 2 and one half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hiebert, was returned to Portland, Monday. The bandage was removed from his eye after an eye operation last Wednesday. Mrs. Walter Reynolds, who accompanied Mrs. Hiebert, Monday, reported the doctor as saying the operation was successful but that the eyes would not be completely normal for perhaps a year.

Synchronized with the horse show events, all eight nights, will be an outstanding card or rip-roaring rodeo action, featuring the Christensen Brothers Rodeo troupe.
The five ever-popular events scheduled are: bareback riding; saddle-bronc riding; calf-roping; bull-dogging and bull-riding. With some specially imported Brahma bulls, new to the ring and full of fire, there should be action aplenty. Also, some 300 bucking horses, fresh from unbridled range freedom and raring to go, will probably jet-propel many contestants to the turf. It is expected that the competition will be rough and ready in all events.
Prospective entrants are reminded entries for the horse show of the 1951 Oregon State Fair close August 20. Premium lists may be had by writing the Fair office at P. O. Box 671, Salem.
