

Forest Products Market Report

Unfavorable logging weather has strengthened Douglas fir prices, according to the weekly report prepared from data supplied by State Farm Foresters to the O.S.C. extension service, and other information.

Douglas Fir Logs:
Recent advances have carried most saw log prices in the Willamette Valley back to the spring level. Hot, dry weather has caused logging bans to be extended into September and some mills are short of logs. During the past week, valley mills paid from $33 to $44 a thousand board feet for second-growth Douglas fir logs 12 feet or more in length. Most camp-run loads brought around $38. Eight-foot logs down to 4-inch diameters were taken by a few mills at $15 a cord. Others paid $17 to $18 a cord or $35 a thousand for 6-inch minimums 8 feet long.

Old-growth fir logs ranged from $60 on No. 1's down to $40 for No. 3's in the central valley. In the southern part, the range was from $46 to $36. Peelers topped the log market at $100 a thousand board feet in the central valley. Prices on peeler logs in the southern part ranged from $95 on No. 1's down to $75 for No. 3's.

Pulpwood:
Pulpwood plants in the northern part of the valley paid $17 a cord or $35 to $36 thousand for unpeeled spruce, hemlock, and true fir during the past week. Some pulpwood peeled earlier was being received at $19 to $20 a cord.

Poles & Piling:
There has been little change in pole and piling prices. Poles 50 feet or more in length are in best demand. Prices range from 9 cents a foot for 20-foot lengths up to 45 cents a foot for peeled Douglas fir poles 100 feet long. On peeled 50-foot lengths, yards offered from 22 to 33 cents.

Hardwood Logs:
Valley hardwood mills paid from $35 to $40 a thousand for 8-foot alder, ash and maple logs. An occasional mill took chinquapin at $37.50 and cottonwood at $28.

Other Forest Products:
Fir hop poles were in very good demand in the Salem area at $1.25 to $1.50 a pole. Cedar poles brought 50 cents more than fir. Pickers in the Eugene area received 12 cents a bunch for ferns. Dry cascaras was 15 cents a pound. Seed cones were still wanted.

MILL CITY

Instead of rain, Mill City is getting ashes! With a shock citizens realized the Sardine creek fire is roaring mad again—this time on the Marion county side—this afternoon.

Food sale—It is in Jenkins hardware store, Saturday, Sept. 22. The First Christian church women's fellowship is sponsoring the sale. The sale starts at 10 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Greene are leaving for a vacation with their daughter and family in Idaho.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jackson and children of Astoria are spending a few days with Frank's parents here.

"Fall Bulb Planting" will be topic discussed by Mrs. Charles Dolezal when the Mill City garden club meets at the home of Mrs. Elsie Potter, Thursday evening, Sept. 27. Hostesses for the September meeting are Mrs. Mel Robinson, Mrs. A. N. Robinson and Mrs. James Rose. Visitors are welcome during these meetings which are held the fourth Thursday of each month.

The Geo. Vetoes and the Ray Mundts visited Jantzen beach, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Trask are moving back to Mill City. They formerly lived in Cutler City.

The C. W. F. bake sale, Saturday, Sept. 22, at Jenkins hardware store will include hot dishes, salads, as well as baked goods.

Sunday guests at the Robert Veness home were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherman and their two children from Vancouver, Wash. Sherman is a music instructor at the state blind school there. They were accompanied by Mrs. Jessie Veness of Portland who returned home, Monday.

John Muir was elected commander of the Mill City American Legion Post 159, during an election last Thursday in the Legion hall.

Installation of the newly elected officers will be Thursday evening, Sept. 17, in the Legion hall. C. A. Bruder was chosen vice commander; Beauford Flatman, 2nd vice commander; David Kelly, adjutant; Frank Stovall, finance officer; Don Jenkins, service officer; and Guy Sorensen, sergeant-at-arms. Dick Morse is the retiring post commander. The Legion meeting next Thursday night will be a joint Legion-Auxiliary, installation-social affair.

Shelby Umphress is back in school after his accident. Doctor's orders—no football this season.

A mothers' meeting of kindergarten children will be held in the home of Mrs. Eldon Lents, house No. 14 in the CBI addition.

Mr. and Mrs. Beauford Flatman's daughter, Yvonne, swallowed accidentally a number of sleeping pills Tuesday night. She was taken immediately to the hospital where an antidote was administered. The tiny child was returned home, Wednesday afternoon.

The Ed Cooke's are driving a new automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. David McIntyre of Eugene were guests of the Chas. Umphresses last weekend.

Lucille Ziebert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. "Tony" Ziebert, cut her heel seriously Tuesday afternoon while riding her bike. She fell into the wheel of the bike while it was traveling a good clip. Dr. Reid took several stitches in Lucille's heel. Miss Ziebert navigates only on crutches and is confined to her home.

Celebrating her tenth birthday, Thursday was Carol Veness whose parents gave a barbecue dinner in their front yard for a group of schoolmates. After the dinner, many lovely gifts were opened and games were played. Children attending were Carolyn Harman, Shereen Muir, Norma and Ellena Nelson, Joan and Judith Bigger, Karen and Sue Rue, and the hostesses, Carol and Shirley Veness. Sending gifts were Margaret and Georgia Palmer.

Dinner guests Sunday at the Christian church parsonage were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Shepherd and son, Bill, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Roten and children of Mehama.

The Junior Teens will have as special speaker next Tuesday evening Mr. Clark from Salem. Special music will be provided by members of the group.

The R. B. McClains are on vacation. They will visit their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter McClain of Seattle, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bassett celebrated their wedding anniversary, Saturday night and Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Snyder of Portland were married at the same time as the Bassetts; they, too, took part in an anniversary dinner and evening of dancing.

Mrs. Ira Teeter returned last Friday from an extended vacation in Washington. Mrs. Teeter visited Mrs. G. O. Sink of Klickitat, Wash., and Merlin Sink, also of Washington. She made shopping trips to The Dalles and Goldendale, Wash.

Mrs. Lelia Bushnell received an unusual birthday present this week. Friends gathered in the Bushnell home for a birthday party in her honor. A very attractively wrapped gift was presented to Mrs. Bushnell. When the unveiling was complete, there remained a pair of "red flannels" loaned many "moons" ago for a certain huntress' warmth!

Donald S. Peterson, son of the publisher of the Mill City Enterprise was a guest in the Peterson home last week. "Young" Don has just received his discharge from the Navy Reserve. Don served on the hospital ship, Consolation, in Korean waters, Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Don Peterson and daughter, Susan, and their guest drove to Silverdale, Wash., where Don's wife and two small children reside.
