By GARY PETERSON

Chemawa's Indians proved 'just' one point too tough for Mill City High's Timberwolves as the green jerseyed pack was set back 12 to 13. Water, in one of its more common forms (rain), deluged the field and the spectators. The crowd was depressed even further when the Redskins scored in the last quarter, thereby overcoming a 12-7 point deficit. Delmar Skillings, letterman end, ran sixty yards in the fourth quarter for a final Mill City TD... but, as it was before stated, the 'cuss-cuss' Indians retaliated quickly. 'Nuff said!

Oregon State's Beavers proved quite adequately that they possessed the power necessary for a slam-bang PCC race. Dave (Super) Mann and Slammin' Sam Baker literally terrorized a Utah crew which is considered a cinch for the Rocky Mountain conference title. Several MCHS students made the journey to Corvallis to watch the dusky Mann whip out an average of 21.2 yards per try; and Baker, OSC's powerful fullback, carried the ball straight up the middle for an average of 7.9 yards each and every time he took the ball and rambled! Since this game, sportswriters on some of the coast's leading papers have picked State for a finish behind California in the "big race" that started with the Beavers tabbed as a "dark horse" team. Personally, I can't sound off about that team enough! The question now is, are the Beavers giant-killers or giants in their own right? I say they're giants, and I call 'em the way I see 'em.

A representative of the Curtis publishing company visited Mill City high this week in the interests of a magazine sales push. The school gets as high as fifty percent on the most popular of the group of eighty magazines published by this company and affiliates, and thirty percent on the remainder.

Salesmen get prizes proportionate to their sales, besides. Don Peterson publisher of The Enterprise, has made an offer to Mill City high for a subscription campaign after the magazine "big" is over. Offers have also been made and accepted by other high schools in this area with marked success.

David Keyes put his foot down and went through the ceiling. He was hooking up a radio so that world series games could be heard in extra periods. He was tinkering on said radio in the attic of the high school building when his foot slipped on a chip of wood... Cain was raised when plaster fell!

Economic troubles are pinched in a wringer in East Berlin. The "new" party line states that East Berliners must shake hands less because they waste too much time that way when they could be working glorious overtime for Russia's Stalin, Hero Extraordinary!

The Giants and the Yankees will play the world series. I'm betting on the Yanks. The old pros are getting aged, but the Bombers have a habit of winning the ones that count, and they aren't throwing away the winner's share of the world series paycheck.

That big old Indian in the game

Chief of Police Kenneth Hunt of Mill City gets caught in the act! Some tall talkin' will be required in explaining why he's pushing a paint brush on North First Avenue. The City Fathers should investigate this matter! Could be that Chief Hunt is just giving vent to a subconscious artist urge. Anyway Art Hedge, Mill City's unassuming and faithful public servant, doesn't seem disturbed about losing his position to Chief Hunt. Mill City's police chief has been pushing a rather intensive safety campaign. Education of school children on safety rules has been his concern recently. That sign being painted on North First means what it says. (Photo courtesy of The Statesman and Robert Veness)

MAYORS PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS Mill City joins the remainder of Oregon and the nation in girding to defend ourselves against a peril greater than any which ever has confronted us; and

WHEREAS one essential key to our success is the efficiency of our program to mobilize and completely use our manpower on the battlefronts, in the factories and in the fields; and

WHEREAS the physically handicapped have demonstrated in peace and in war that they are capable workers when placed on jobs within their remaining physical capacities, abilities, training and experience, and therefore, as individuals and groups, are valuable manpower resources; and

WHEREAS there persists a need for continuous public support from the press, radio, pulpit and many other informational media despite their demonstrated abilities; and

WHEREAS the Congress of the United States in 1945, aware of the urgency of this continuing need, set aside the first full week in October to be observed each year as National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week;

NOW, THEREFORE I, ALBERT TOMAN, Mayor of Mill City hereby call on all our people, individually and in their official capacities, to support the Governor's committee and the local committee for National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, October 7-13, as one means of providing equal employment opportunities for handicapped workers on jobs they are fully qualified to do. America needs all of us in the job ahead.

last week looked somewhat like a "geishie" wrestler Gorgeous George, but I don't think even Gorgeous would look so refined in a football suit. Complexion, you know! Besides, he doesn't like that "vulgar" mud. Gets in the fingernails, you know. (Just "borned" that word, Geishie, before I shut down the old typewriter.) Merry Christmas!

Chemawa Edges Out Mill City, 13 to 12

The Chemawa Indians nosed the Mill City Timberwolves in the opener of Marion County's "B" league race. Mill City scored early in the first quarter by marching 70 yards to pay-dirt. The "pesky" Indians retaliated quickly with a touchdown and made the extra point, score 7-6.

After that both teams scrimmaged in the center of the field until the last quarter when Delmar Skillings bounded away on a run of more than sixty yards for a touchdown. Again the Indians scored with a TD on a pass play this time.

The Redskins knew they'd been in a game before they got off the field! Both teams were plagued by fumbles, but the pig-skin seemed more slippery for the Timberwolves, as rain deluged the field.

Soaked spectators stayed on faithfully despite their discomfort. A husky Chemawa player gave the Timberwolves rather a bad time.
