Checks Without Checking Account

Residents of Mill City today can do perfectly legally what ordinarily would put them behind bars if they were caught—write and use personal checks without maintaining a checking account, according to Bob Hill, cashier of the Mill City State Bank.

The trick isn't done with mirrors. It's made possible by the Personal Money Order plan instituted this week by the bank.

Here's the way you can write a check without having a checking account—and get away with it. Step into the Mill City State Bank and ask for a Register Check-Personal Money Order. If you want to send someone a check for $25, pay the clerk $25 plus a 15c charge. You will receive two of the three copies of a Register Check made out by the clerk for $25. The clerk keeps a copy for bank files.

Next you complete the original copy of the check by filling in the date, payee name and your own name, just as you would in making out a check if you had a bank account. You mail the original and keep the triplicate copy as your receipt.

Average time for the entire transaction is only 15 seconds, according to officials.

The low cost and speedy procedure of the system, make it a convenient way for persons without checking accounts to remit by mail for real estate or income taxes, pay bills or transmit gift funds, bank officials pointed out.

By GARY PETERSON
The Mill City high school basketball team traveled to Detroit for a practice game with the Detroit high cagers. Team members report a highly successful trip. Wednesday night the local casaba aspirants traveled to Stayton for a game with the Stayton Eagles. A practice tilt with Gates high is on tap for Saturday night. On Monday the team will appear in the annual Jamboree to be held in the Willamette. At the Jamboree, each team from the South section of the Marston county "B" League plays a team from the North for a ten minute playing period. At the end of the "games" the winner of the North-South tussle is announced, along with the winners in the cheering section contest. Last year the Mill City yell section copped third place in the league. As per usual, the cheer-leaders are making elaborate plans for a Mill City victory (we hope.) Tuesday evening the girls had a whoop-te-do party in the school making pom-poms for this event.

Incidentally, the girls have been pretty busy evenings playing basketball. Not for competition, you understand, but just to be playing basketball. It's the weirdest game the boys ever saw. Half of each team stays on each half of the floor, while the other half tries to make a basket or defend it as the case may be. Each girl may dribble the ball only twice, and if you even touch an opposing player, the whistle blows. Some of the boys tried it. It was nothing like any basketball game we ever played.

Now, to get off the subject of basketball completely, politics is a good topic. The following is the Two Cow Theory of National Government, which some Oregon State Students copied from the Readers Digest, I believe.

1. Anarchism—If you have two cows, your neighbor shoots one and takes the other.
2. Nazism—If you have two cows, the government shoots you and takes both cows.
3. Communism—If you have two cows, you give the government both cows, and the government gives you a glass of milk.
4. Soft Pink Communism—If you have two cows, you're a capitalist.
5. Capitalism—If you have two cows, you sell one and buy someone else's bull.
6. Socialism—If you have two cows, you shoot one and give the other away.
7. New Dealism—If you have two cows, the government will loan you money to buy a bull.
8. Imperialism—If you have two cows, you steal someone else's bull.
9. Realism—If you have two cows, both are probably dry!

And then there's antagonism—If you have two cows your neighbor doesn't buy a bull either.

There is a new club in school—Mr.

Many of the things we consider modern achievements are actually very old. A good example is plumbing. Thirteen hundred feet of copper pipe plumbing was installed in the pyramid temple of Abusir, Egypt, about 3000 years B. C. It looks like the mummies beat us to it. Many of the things we think modern were known and used by the ancient Egyptians, whose civilization has never been equalled in many respects.
