I had a nurse when I was in the hospital. I had to watch her all the time. She was a great kiddier. Everytime I turned my back she gave me the needle.

I used to be a prize fighter myself. I suppose every fighter remembers his first fight and his last fight. I do. Same fight.

Meat prices are so high that everybody's eating chicken these days. Yes, the news about beef prices gets around all right. I went down home Sunday and one of my hens sat around all day in a bucket saying "moo."

I heard it was so hot this summer in New York's Museum of Art that George Washington was crossing the Delaware in his B.V.D.'s!

You know, I took a trip to Europe this summer. Most of the time I spent in Paris. And I drank lots of tea while I was there. It's a funny thing about the tea they serve in France. They put bubbles in it!

Mill City Theatre "DAVID AND BATHSHEBA" — The Story in Pictures — Part III

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY
Dec. 4 and 5

(1) The Israelites, led on by the advice of Nathan the Prophet (RAYMOND MASSEY), demand the death of the wrongdoer Bathsheba (SUSAN HAYWARD), wife of their King David (GREGORY PECK), to atone God's wrath and drive famine from their land. David, grieved and disillusioned with God at the death of Bathsheba's ill-conceived child at birth, prepares to fight for her life, but she dissuades him from taking arms against his own people.

Tranquil in the face of impending death, Bathsheba asks David to play his harp for her a last time. (2) In a moment of great decision, David goes to the tabernacle where he has had the Ark of the Covenant housed, and there confesses the multitude of his sins. As he touches the holy object, through his mind pass the highlights of a full and turbulent life. One of these is the moment in which the former King Saul formulated with his generals the monumental battle plan against the Philistines. (3) Another recollection is of the fearful Philistine giant, Goliath, slain by David with a pebble from his sling-shot. (4) As his memories fade away, the interior of the tabernacle is filled with radiant sunshine. Soon rain begins to fall, signifying the end of drought and famine. God has forgiven David. He is free at last, and in the palace rejoins Bathsheba to rule with wisdom and happiness. (The end)
