Some delay could be experienced in actual allocation of the funds from the federal government if the Physicians and Surgeons hospital of Portland goes ahead with its announced plan to "file an injunction or take other appropriate action against the State Board of Health challenging the manner in which disbursements of Hill-Burton act funds were handled." However, W. H. Bell, president of the Santiam Memorial and an attorney does not believe this action could cause much trouble. It is his opinion that the Physicians and Surgeons is not "gunning" for Santiam Memorial funds.

Forest Products Market Report

Demand for Douglas fir sawlogs continued good at ceiling prices during the week ending January 5. Weather forced some logging shutdowns, and there was little market activity in those areas. Pole prices showed a spotty increase in the southern valley with the posting of new price lists. Other farm forest products were generally unchanged, according to the weekly farm forest products market report prepared from data supplied by the State Board of Forestry to the OSC Extension Service.

Pulpwood:
Demand for peeled pulpwood was generally very good in the northern and central valley. Peeled spruce was $20 a cord, and hemlock, true fir and Douglas fir brought $19. Unpeeled Douglas fir was in fair demand at $14 to $17 a cord or $5.90 a ton.

Douglas Fir Sawlogs:
Douglas fir sawlogs continued in good demand at ceiling prices in the Willamette Valley last week. Some areas reported very little activity due to snow and freezing weather. River prices for second-growth sawlogs in the northern and central valley were $40 a thousand board feet for No. 3's and $50 for No. 2's. Mill prices were reduced by the cost of booming and rafting and the difference in hauling costs. Lane County prices were $37.50 a thousand for No. 3's, and $42.50 for No. 2's. Camp run logs in both areas ranged from $40 to $45 a thousand for logs over 24 feet long at valley mills. Some mills in the foot-hills paid down to $35. Shorter logs ranged from $30 to $42 a thousand. 8-foot logs down to 6 inch diameter were in good demand at $15 to $18 a cord, or $34 to $40 a thousand.

Old-growth sawlogs were $42.50, and $65 a thousand in the river at northern and central valley points. Lane County prices delivered to mills or shipping points were $37.50, $42.50, and $52.50, with very few No. 1's being sold as sawlogs. Peelers brought $80 to $110 a thousand in the northern and central valley and $65 to $85 in the Eugene area. Poles and Piling: Barkie poles over 40 feet long rose 1 to 4 cents in the Eugene area this past week. Demand was good in the entire valley, especially for poles over 50 feet. Prices ranged from 7 to 43 cents a lineal foot for lengths from 20 to 100 feet. 50-foot barkies brought from 20 1/2 to 26 cents.

Hardwood Logs: Most hardwood logs brought $34.50 to $37.50 a thousand. Maple was in very strong demand at $40 in the Portland area. Cottonwood ranged from $24 to $28, with limited demand for 16 foot peeler blocks at $30 in the northern valley.

Other Forest Products: Sword fern was unchanged at 14 cents a bunch and dry Cascara bark brought 15 cents a pound. Car stakes were in moderate demand at 45 to 50 cents each. Cedar fence posts were 25 to 35 cents each.
