Out of the Woods

By JAMES STEVENS

Lovely Logging . . .
In taking bearings on all views of the country's timber resource—views of yesterday, today and tomorrow in the woods—two things are steadfast. The stump we shall always have with us. And the logger, the man behind the stump, is here to stay.

The logger swung an ax of stone in the time of Ug and Ag, in our time he is a power-saw operator in a metal safety hat, and tomorrow, very likely, he will raise his hand and drop his tree with the flick of an atomic ax. "Great days in the timber," say the old-time pinetops and fir-whackers.

They tell that the fact of great change in the woods first hit them between the eyes away back when they learned that the pretty dresses they saw on girls in the timber towns were often made from products of the West Coast hemlock log. It was a piece of information no logger was apt to forget when he went to work on a hemlock tree, back in the 1920s.

Then the wood pulp industry was expanding nationally from growing paper demand and from new pulp products—and for pulp making the hemlock was prime. So the sons of Paul Bunyan were cutting and yarding logs from which yarn as fine as silk was spun, to make pretty clothes for the girls. This was what work in the woods had come to. Holy old mackinaw!

No Wood for Fuel . . .
Every development of the kind represented increased utilization of the available wood on a given acre of forest land. It meant more work and earnings for the logger, bigger returns for the land owner, stronger reasons for applied forestry, more money to pay for it, less logging leftovers to become fire hazards, cleaner ground for nature's reseeded—and more stumps!

New surprises have kept coming along for the old-time loggers. Soon after the last war a new logging camp—really, a new town, with family homes, school, church—was opened far back in a Douglas fir area.

All heating and cooking stoves in camp were equipped to use fuel oil. Any log in the area that was sound enough for use as fuel was too valuable to burn in camp. So fuel oil was hauled up 30 miles to the camp and every piece of sound wood was hauled down to the mills, for conversion into forest products.

Down South . . .
"The Southern forest" region, with 183,000,000 acres of commercial forest land, was amazingly and wonderfully re-invigorated in the 1920s by the tide of new demand for paper and new methods of making newsprint pulp

Lyons Home Ec Club Plans Food Sale

Lyons — Mrs. Giles Wagner was hostess for the meeting of the Home Economics club of the Santiam Valley grange at her home Tuesday afternoon. With Mrs. Wilson Stevens, chairman presiding over the meeting. Many plans were made and discussed. The by laws were signed and it was voted to pay off the debt for the building fund. Mrs. Stevens also appointed committees to help take care of the dance suppers. It was also planned to have a cooked food display at the next regular meeting of the grange June 6, which will be sold at a silent auction following the meeting. Those attending the meeting were Mesdames Jerry Coffman, Frank Buckler, Elmer Taylor, Floyd Bassett, Jake Myers, Ike Myers, Albert Stevens, Wilson Stevens, May Patton and the hostess Mrs. Wagner.

Mari-Linn PTA Installs New Officers Tuesday

Installation of officers was the main business at the meeting of the Mari-Linn PTC club, Tuesday evening. Thomas Putman presided over the meeting and was installing officer due to the absence of Mrs. Keith Phillips. Officers installed were Mrs. Merwin Knox, president, Miss Norma Miller, vice president, Mrs. George Huffman, secretary, and Mrs. Ed Goschie, treasurer who was unable to be present will be installed at a later date.

Plans were also made and completed for the school picnic which will be held on the school grounds Sunday, May 25, at 1 p.m. A general discussion was held on the keeping of the gym open for skating during the summer and was decided they would.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the eighth grade mothers.

from slash pine. The new forest industry of the South has grown steadily ever since, while Southern lumber production has held up to about 40 per cent of the American total.

Scientific forest fire control has made mighty headway against the old farm tradition of "burn to bring on the grass," a tradition of death to tree seedlings.

It has been demonstrated that an acre of Georgia slash pine land will grow up to eight times as much cellulose in 25 years as an average cotton acre will yield in 25 annual crops. Present and prospective markets make tree farming good business for the owner of ten acres of woodland, and for the owner of ten square miles of industrial forest, in Georgia.

So in the South, and in all other forest regions of the country, the stump farmer is turning into a tree farmer on all shapes and sizes of the privately owned land that has been surveyed and classified by experts as "commercial forest land."

Community Bible School Planned

This year churches of Mill City are uniting for a union daily vacation Bible school which will be held from June 2 to 13, beginning at 9 a.m. each week day morning. The classes will meet at the Presbyterian and Christian churches. The Beginners (ages 5 and 6) and the Juniors (grade 4 to 6) meeting at the Presbyterian church, and the Primaries (grade 1 to 3) and Intermediate (grade 7 to 9) at the Christian church. Young people of the community are invited to attend the classes which will include Bible lessons, crafts, supervised recreation, etc.

Missionaries Coming Wednesday, May 28

On Wednesday, May 28th, Mr. and Mrs. Geradl Emerson, former missionaries to Colombia, South America, will be speaking at the Presbyterian church. The ladies of the community are invited to hear Mrs. Emerson speak at 2 p.m. at the Recreation hall of the church. The meeting will be a followed by a tea.

At 6:00 there will be a fellowship supper there, after which Mr. Emerson will speak on life in South America and will show slides.

The meeting is planned to end early enough so it will not interfere with the grade school graduation exercises for those interested in attending both. The public is invited.
