

DETROIT

By MRS. S. T. MOORE

The Detroit school board announces that applications will be received for cafeteria cook for the school year due to the resignation of Mrs. Wayne Woodward who is in poor health at present.

Levelling of the Detroit school ball field and playground is underway with the J. W. Briggs construction company in charge. Cost of the project was slightly under $2000. Brad Humphrey surveyed the area prior to the dirt moving operations.

Mrs. Arlene Sorseth and sons Steve and Craig of Westfir are visiting friends at the Detroit Ranger station this week. The Sorseths lived at the former ranger station a year and a half, moving last January to the Oakridge ranger district where Al Sorseth is administrator of timber sales at Westfir.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schaffer of Idanha were luncheon guests at the Guy Moore home Sunday.

Visiting at the Irving Steers home last weekend were Mrs. Steers' aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Fitz, and their children, Jimmy and Margery of Corvallis, attended by David Hill, the children's playmate. Also guests at the Steers home were Mrs. Steers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hanson of Seaside.

The Detroit Women's Civic club held a rummage sale Tuesday, netting $31.67 from sales. A large collection of clothing and miscellaneous items left from the sale will be held for a future sale this fall.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Rasnick last week were Mrs. Rasnick's son, Tom Griffin of Portland, and her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Richmond and Patricia Ann from Montana.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ray are vacationing in Montana where they will visit relatives in Butte.

Mrs. S. T. Moore and children spent several days in Corvallis last week at the home of Mrs. Moore's mother Mrs. Edwin T. Reed. Mary Lou Moore celebrated her ninth birthday with a party at her grandmother's home. Present for the celebration were Mrs. Reed, Mrs. H. D. Hartwell, Mary Lou's great-grandmother, cousins Phyllis and Kathy Reed and Edward Aldwell of Sonora, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Zealand Fryer are moving to Pocatello, Idaho, where Mr.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Rynearson who have been looking for a business location for several months have purchased Jerry's tavern at Gates and are now operating the establishment. They expect to move from Detroit to Gates as soon as they can find a home there.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson are Mrs. Lola Christenson, Mrs. Johnson's daughter of Newberg, and her little girl, Norma Lee.

Alaska visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sophy are Mrs. Sophy's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Waters and two children from Anchorage. The Waters drove from Anchorage to Yakima, a total of 2700 miles, in five and one-half days. Also visiting at the Sophy home is Mrs. Gladys Hunter, Mrs. Sophy's aunt of Seattle.

Retroactive Pay Due CIO Woodworkers

Loggers and sawmill workers who terminated employment with employers who have contracts with the International Woodworkers of America, CIO, during the recent strike in the northwest, were urged today to apply immediately to their former employers for retroactive pay due as a result of the strike settlement.

The notice came from A. F. Hartung, IWA president, who said the men may have only a few days yet to make application. The retroactivity stems from the new contract which grants a wage boost of 7% an hour plus differential pay and other benefits as of April 1. Men who worked from that time until the strike was called will have pay coming to them if their operations were covered by the IWA northwest regional negotiating committee settlement, Hartung said, regardless of where they are working now, or what union affiliation they may have.

Deadline of 30 days for application is based on the date each individual company was notified by the wage stabilization board that its contract with the union is approved. That deadline is nearly at hand in some cases.

Each worker must make application in writing to his former employer unless otherwise notified by his union or employer.

QUESTION: My basement has much water coming up from below only after a hard rain, therefore it must be surface water. Would you install drain tiles inside or out, and how?
—A. R., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

ANSWER: While you may be right about this being surface water, it is obvious, also, that your foundation is undermined. Water must pass under the footing to come up inside. Therefore, unless drain tiles are located outside the footing, there is always the danger your foundation can be completely undermined and collapse. Put your drainage tiles outside—and below the footing.

QUESTION: The interior of my house is finished with fiber board panels. Every joint has cracked its full length. The joints seem to have been made with a tape and putty or paste. This may have cracked due to swelling and shrinkage due to moisture changes. Is there a flexible material I can use for these cracks?
—D. C. J., Racine, Wis.

ANSWER: More likely the cracked joints result from shrinkage in structural timbers of your home. Taped joints are standard, and we'd suggest replacement with the same material. Green timber continues to shrink for some years, with resulting cracks in all wall finish, but it seems probable you've passed the worst stage. Flexible materials make poor bases for paint, paper.

QUESTION: I'm looking for something to prevent rust on gutters and downspouts. Would red lead do this?
—W. B., Seattle, Wash.

ANSWER: Yes. Red lead is a fine rust preventive on all metal. It does require a coat of paint after it has dried, unless you want to live with its color. In addition there are paint-on galvanizing compounds, black metal paints, rust-sealing compounds with rubber and asphalt bases.
