Summer's a Breeze When You Live on Porch, Lawn

JUST imagine this self-portrait of hot weather contentment: you, lolling in a hammock when the day's work is done, cool breezes, soft music, a good book.

It's yours for the planning with this low-cost, heat relief recipe for a pleasurable summer at home. Move some of your living room furniture to the porch. Add a hammock and camp chair or two. Then be sure you have enough handy outdoor outlets for plugging in reading lamps, radio, cooking appliances and fan (for breezeless nights).

While you're about it, consider other electrical conveniences on the terrace or lawn such as outdoor floodlighting for the barbecue and for night-time sports. Who knows? When you get through, you may want to drop those plans for an expensive vacation trip!
