Gladys served as chauffeur as the group took their loot to the Grange Sept. 25 in the banquet room of a fair, Sept. 27th. They came out with 36 ribbons, 20 blues, 5 reds, and 11 white ribbons and money prizes.

All arrangements were made by Mrs. Dolezal in nine different classes, winning eight ribbons. Mrs. Rachael Olmstead was high score winner in specimens of beautiful asters, lady fingers, red flax, nicotina, delphinium, zinnias, cockscomb, giant marigolds, chrysanthemums and the most deceiving, striped rose, fixed in a marine garden, which most spectators tool for a camellia or tuberous begonia.

Those who visited the Grange Fair received a warm welcome, and had at interesting visit with those attending the fair. Next Grange fair it is hoped that more participants will help in working out an even better and bigger grade school auditorium at 8 p.m.

"Little Things" Guard Home's Value

"The dollar value of many homes built ten or more years ago is now twice what it was in 1941. Therefore it is doubly important for homeowners to pro-tect their investment."

So says Arthur W. Steudel, president of The Sherwin-Williams Co., as he cautions homeowners to pay particular attention to the "little things" in home care.

"A leaking eavestrough, for example, is not only annoying, it can be the cause of costly dam-age," Mr. Steudel points out. "The water may work its way behind the siding and the next thing you know the siding boards start to decay. Replacing them costs a lot more than repairing the gutter."

Other danger spots which the homeowner often overlooks to his sorrow, according to Mr. Steudel, include the flashings around chimneys and the joints where window frames join sills.

"Failure to keep such crucial points in good repair is an in-vitation to trouble. Here again, way into the structure itself and attacking the wood from the un-painted and, therefore, unpro-tected side," Mr. Steudel advises. To safeguard the increased value of his property, the home-owner would be wise to inspect his home regularly and to paint it as soon as the need arises, Mr. Steudel suggests. "A good paint job," he points out, "actually enhances the value of property, providing exterior beauty and protection against all kinds of weather. That's because high quality paint scoffs at the elements. Its quality and durability are proved on 'exposure farms' where painted panels are subjected to all kinds of weather. Paint that measures up to such rugged tests we call 'Weather-ated' to signify its proved dura-

"Equally important is the fact that 'Weatherated' paint actually cleans itself through controlled chalking, with the rain washing away dust and dirt. As a result paint looks new longer, and the homeowner does not have to repaint so often."
