Eisenhower Quotations

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the Republican presidential candidate, on various subjects of interest to the workingman. (His support of the Taft-Hartley act is so well known that quotes on that law are unnecessary.)

Social Security—
 "If all that Americans want is security, they can go to prison. They'll have enough to eat, a bed and a roof over their heads."—Speech in Galveston, Tex., Dec. 8, 1948.

"We hear the illusion called security. We want to wear fine shirts and have caviar and champagne when we should be eating hot dogs and beer."—Address to St. Andrews Society, New York City, Nov. 30, 1949.

"In these times we hear so much of security, security for everything we do . . . I should think that the best example of it would be a man serving a lifetime in a Federal prison."—Speech to Columbia University students, Jan. 12, 1952.

Tidelands Oil—
 "Of course we must recognize the right and the responsibility of the Federal government over national resources essential to the national security. However, I see no conflict in this responsibility which interferes with the vesting of title of tidelands in the states."—Telegram to Jack Porter, Texas Eisenhower leader, June 81, 1952.

Strikes—
 "General Eisenhower told a New Jersey delegation that he would have used the Taft-Hartley law in the steel dispute to put off the strike for another 80 days."—Washington Post, June 13, 1952.

Full Employment—
 "There are times when government, acting for all the people, must intervene . . . and use government aid to tide the people over in an emergency. But this is a far different thing from making it a permanent proposition or using wrongfully the idea of emergency to install some kind of Socialistic system of government paternalism."—Interview in U.S. News & World Report magazine March 26, 1952.

Anti-Trust—
 "The government seems, at times, to resort to an interpretation of anti-monopoly laws that permits it practically to blackmail legitimate enterprise. It has so played upon and distorted the true meaning and intent of the interstate commerce responsibility that it attempts to arrogate to itself functions, even police functions, that specifically belong to the states."—Letter to a friend, 1951, quoted in "Man from Abilene," by Kevin McCann.

Civil Rights—
 "There are people called 'agitators' who would have us forsake some of our liberties and freedoms in return for what they called 'Federal security' . . . These agitators hope to create a condition where they can get power. One of those they are always attacking is the Negro."—Speech at dedication of Harlem YMCA, New York City, March 25, 1949.

"I do not believe that we can cure all of the evils in men's hearts by law, and when you get to compulsory action in certain specific phases of this thing, I really believe we can do more by leadership and getting states to do it than by making it a Federal compulsory thing, and this I say with the utmost sympathy for those who feel themselves depressed and unfairly treated."—Abilene, Kan., press conference, June 5, 1952.

Russia—
 "I see nothing in the future that would prevent Russia and the United States from being the closest possible friends. If we are really going to be friends we really must understand each other a bit."—Moscow press conference, Aug. 14, 1945.

"The Russians would have nothing to gain from a war with the United States. Nothing guides Russian policy so much as a desire for friendship with the United States."—Testimony before House Military Affairs Committee, Nov. 15, 1945.

There is "no more reason to fear the 190 million backward people living on the Eurasian continent than there is to fear polliwogs swimming down a muddy creek."—Denver press conference, June 17, 1952.

The Presidency—
 "The necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained . . . when life-long professional soldiers . . . abstain from seeking high political office."—Letter to Leonard V. Funder, Jan. 1948.

Medical Education—
 Federal aid to medical education to train doctors, dentists, nurses and public health personnel is a "step toward socialism."—Press conference, June 5, 1952.

Demobilization, 1945-46—
 "The present rate of demobilization . . . represents the spontaneous expression of the will of the American people."—Letter to Mrs. A. H. Nickless, Dec. 19, 1945.

"Frankly, I don't think demobilization was too fast."—Press conference, Sept. 1, 1946.

Nixon—
 "My colleague in this political campaign has been subjected to a very unfair and vicious attack. So far as I am concerned, he has not only vindictated himself, but I feel he has acted as a man of courage and honor and so far as I am concerned stands higher than ever before."—Introducing Sen. Richard Nixon, the Republican vice presidential candidate at Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 24, 1952, after Nixon tried to explain the $18,000 fund raised for him by a group of wealthy businessmen after his election to the senate.

There's more to Going Pullman
 than a good night's sleep!

Ever stop to think why train travel—and especially S. P. Pullman travel—is such a restful, relaxing and satisfying way of going places? Actually there are lots of reasons—some big, some small. Mostly it's because everything is done so smoothly and unobtrusively for your comfort and pleasure.

What other mode of travel gives you all this? Full-length beds with full-size sheets and blankets; a private room of your own, if you wish, with its own private lavatory facilities; air-cooling and air-conditioning; a friendly porter to give you prompt and attentive service day or night; complimentary shoe shines; ice water at your finger tips; delicious Dining Car meals, courteously served; a Lounge Car for refreshing beverages, magazines, newspapers and congenial traveling companions.

For overnight or longer trips—whether along the Coast or to the East—Southern Pacific streamliners provide the very finest of modern Pullman accommodations. Try them for your next trip. They are the last word in luxury travel.

THERE'S MORE TO S. P., TOO! S. P. is a road to remember for your freight shipments. We have more miles of lines serving more Western cities and towns than any other railroad. For fast, efficient, dependable freight service—whether carload or l.c.l.—call our nearest agent.
