Faith

If ever in our history as a nation we need to have FAITH, it is now. Christianity is the greatest single force which influences the minds of men. The basis of Christianity is FAITH, no matter how many people may have perverted, or misinterpreted the meaning of this great force, and no matter how many dogmas and creeds have been created in its name, which do not reflect its tenets.

We all want to see peace restored to the world. The sum and substance of the teachings and the achievements of Christ, which may have been interpreted as "miracles", were based on FAITH. The phenomena of "miracles" are produced through the state of mind known as FAITH. Some of our present day teachers of religion, and many who call themselves Christians, neither understand nor practice FAITH.

Tonight, as I write, I am thinking of a man who became known to all civilization—Mohandas Gandhi, of India. In this man the world had one of the most astounding examples known to civilization, of the possibilities of FAITH. Gandhi wielded more potential power than any man living at the time, and this, despite the fact that he had none of the orthodox tools of power, such as money, battleships, soldiers, and materials of warfare. Gandhi had no money, he had no home, he did not even own a suit of clothes, but HE DID HAVE POWER. How did he come by that power?

HE CREATED IT OUT OF HIS UNDERSTANDING OF THE PRINCIPLE OF FAITH AND THROUGH HIS ABILITY TO TRANSPLANT THAT FAITH INTO THE MINDS OF 200 MILLION PEOPLE! Gandhi accomplished, through the influence of FAITH, that which the strongest military power on earth could not, and never will accomplish through soldiers and military equipment, A bombs and H bombs.

DELINQUENT PARENTS

Out in Ardenwald is a scout master who is fed up. He writes anonymously in the community newspaper:

"I have two girls and no boys. I will not deprive them of the fun we as a family can have camping this summer in order to take your boys out. I will continue to take the responsibility of scout master only if you fathers will give me your assistance."

The jaded leader has 30 boys under his wing for all-day hikes, overnight camping trips and the continual quest for merit badges. With the summer season on the way, he asked the boys' parents to give him a hand. One appeal went entirely unheeded. Another brought out one father and one mother out of the score or so families involved.

The scout master can be forgiven his outburst. The spirit of frustration from which it springs is shared by other youth leaders who enjoy their work but resent serving as baby sitters for parents who are happy to be rid of their teen-agers so that they can be free for adult pursuits. Many a neighborhood lacks a Boy Scout troop or a Girl Scout or Camp Fire Girls unit because no parent will take the responsibility that is assumed by the selfless few elsewhere.

With the hiking and camping season coming on, it is a good time for parents to ponder the quality of their response to the recreational and educational needs of their children and the children's friends. Else they may find cause for embarrassment when they open the kids' candy and cigars on Mother's day and Father's day.—From the Oregonian.

SHOWDOWN ON PUBLIC POWER POLICY AWAITED

Says Labor, national weekly labor newspaper: For a tip-off on where Oregon's former governor, Douglas McKay, now Secretary of the Interior, stands on public power watch the Federal Power Commission's hearings on May 13.

The federal government, under the Truman administration, had proposed to build Hell's Canyon dam for power, irrigation and flood control purposes. The Idaho Power company also wants to build several smaller dams which would prevent construction of the federal dam.

The FPC hearing May 13 will be on the application of the Idaho Power

FRANK EDWARDS Says:

(Heard over KPOJ, Portland, at 10:15 p.m., Monday through Friday)

The General Accounting Office is withholding about $6½ million in government subsidies from the American Export Lines. The GAO says the company was overpaid by that amount for the passenger liners, USS Independence and USS Constitution. The government built those two ships at a cost of $56 million, and then sold them to American Export Lines for $28½ million—at your expense, of course. Wonder if the prefix "USS" on American vessels means "Uncle Sam's Subsidy"?

The majority leader of the Illinois state senate received a postcard from a constituent who wants rent controls retained because he can't afford to pay any more rent. Said the postcard: "I am a laborer . . . and my income is smaller than my outcome."

Our 2 Secretaries of State met for lunch recently over the Greek ships situation. Dulles announced that Sen. McCarthy's deal with the Greek shipowners was in the public interest after all. All in all, the Dulles-McCarthy meeting has the earmarks of an attempt to placate the Wisconsin senator—a form of appeasement which is likely to bring little lasting peace to the embattled administration.

company to build these smaller dams. The hearing had been postponed from April 13 to May 13 so that the application could be handled and decision rendered by a commission controlled by the Republicans.

McKay has been cautious on his statements about public vs. private power since taking office. But, concludes Labor:

"Watch for the showdown when the FPC hearings begin. Then testimony by Interior Department spokesmen will show just where McKay stands on the Hell's Canyon issue and, incidentally, on other public power projects."—From the Oregon Teamster.

THANK YOU, MR. LIE

This week the office of Secretary-General of the United Nations changes hands. The Norwegian Trygve Lie steps out and the Swedish Dag Hammarskjöld steps in. Scandinavia may well be proud of furnishing two such sons for the crucial and exacting post at the helm of the world organization.

For Mr. Lie it has been a heart-breaking experience in some ways, and yet a rewarding one, too.

He has seen the UN through seven disillusioning postwar years and its first real trial by fire up to what may be the eve of a Korean truce. And that, as he says, would be "a great victory for the principle of collective security under the United Nations, to which I have always endeavored to give my full loyalty."

That loyalty has won him the bitter hostility of the Russians as part and parcel of their hostility to the UN action in Korea. It has also, unfortunately, won him the censure and suspicion of some Americans who believe that the UN should be nothing more than the obedient instrument of United States policy.

Mr. Lie concluded his farewell speech by saying that if he had made mistakes, "please forgive me." History will do more than forgive him; it will praise him warmly for his self-sacrificing and pioneer service, under painfully difficult circumstances, to an ideal of such vast importance to the world.

We may only hope that his successor, giving as much, may receive more co-operation from a Soviet bloc that, for one reason or another, appears to be seeing at least the tactical advantages of co-operation in the immediate period that lies ahead.—From Christian Science Monitor.
