IT'S FUN TO WEAR GARDEN FLOWERS

by MARY HAZEL DRUMMOND
Author of the book "Styling Corsages With Garden Flowers"

The sun is warm, the skies are blue with occasional white clouds, flowers in the garden are blooming in brilliant colors, a gay contrast to the warm green tones of their stems and leaves. It's nearly summer... time for vacations and traveling, and time also for a corsage.

Shoulder Corsage

Flowers play an important though frequently unnoticed part in our lives. Aside from their delicate fragrance and enchanting colors, they give a definite lift to our spirits, whether they are on our living room tables or as a corsage to add beauty to our costumes.

Perhaps growing flowers is your hobby. Nowadays, you know, there's hardly any excuse for not being able to grow your own lovely creations with the help of such modern new discoveries as the Krillium soil conditioner to aid in getting your plants off to a good start.

If you do enjoy the flowers of your labors, there is no reason why you should not get the utmost out of them. It is easy to enhance your costume by wearing your own corsage. No special training, expensive tools or supplies are needed. With a little practice you will be able to fashion flowers into clever styles that will be the admiration of everyone.

Wearing flowers on the left shoulder is probably one of the oldest corsage customs; nevertheless, it remains in good taste in our present day fashions. In the illustration, five pompon zinnias have been arranged into an attractive corsage to add a colorful note to a brown waif-ile weave dress.

Zinnias are a popular summer and autumn flower. They have a wide color range which gives an opportunity to match or contrast many dress shades. In addition, they are a hardy type of bloom suitable for sportswear.

The following is an accepted method for wiring and taping the zinnias: cut the stem, leaving it one inch in length; wrap a nine inch, medium gauge wire two or three times around the stem, close to the base of the bloom; and tape. Wire and tape each bloom before assembling the corsage.

Wear flowers in your hair! Small zinnias or any other variety of garden flowers are a charming and effective accessory. Follow the contour of your hair-do, or make a flower halo. Just a few small flowers and a dash of imagination will do the trick.

Before wearing flowers, it is a good idea to place them in cold water for two hours or longer. Remember, you want them to look fresh and perky.

Flowers in Your Hair

It is fun to wear flowers, and even more fun to wear flowers that you have grown yourself. Make use of the bright colors in your garden. They will add a festive touch to your summer wardrobe.
