Cut Rate Game Fees For Youth Under 18

With more youngsters becoming interested in hunting each year, the Oregon State Game Commission has directed the following information to nimrods under 18 years of age. Hunters over 18 years of age must have a regular adult license, but those under this age may be able to get a less expensive license depending on the type of game they seek.

Juvenile hunters, those between 14 and 18 years of age, may obtain a special juvenile license for a fee of two dollars. This permits them to hunt upland game birds and water fowl. Also with the cut-rate license some hunters may hunt all types of predators and unprotected species. Children under 14 years of age do not need a license to hunt upland game birds and water fowl but must be accompanied by a parent or a guardian when hunting on other than their own land.

In order to hunt big game, a regular adult license is required of all hunters regardless of age since deer and elk tags are issued only to holders of a regular license. The price of the juvenile license cannot be applied to the price of an adult license if both are purchased the same year.

Federal regulations specify that any person 16 years of age or over must have a migratory bird hunting stamp in possession when hunting waterfowl.

Holders of juvenile licenses may participate in a special pheasant hunt held each year at the E. E. Wilson Game Management area just north of Corvallis. Permits for this hunt are obtained from the Portland office of the game commission.

Body of Gates Man Found Saturday by Scio Men

By Mrs. Albert Millsap
GATES—The body of Clarence D. Johnson, Gates farmer, who had failed to return Friday, October 2, from a short scouting trip into the timber, was found Saturday, October 10, high on the hillside south of the Johnson home.

An extensive search, under direction of the state police had been carried on each day of last week; a blood hound from Springfield had been used; a mounted posse, from Albany, together with hundreds of men and school students from Sublimity, Scio, Stayton, Mill City and Gates, had searched through the rugged mountain area for miles in every direction without avail. Because of a recent heart attack, the family and searchers felt that Mr. Johnson would hardly attempt the more inaccessible heights of the hill.

Saturday Earl Vader and Joe Duchaine, of Scio came to Gates in quest of timber in the vicinity of the Johnson home, and heard for the first time of his disappearance.

Confident that, with the aid of their dog, they would be able to locate the body, they went back to Scio and returned with the dog, which led them almost directly to its location. From the position of the body when found, it was evident that Mr. Johnson was stricken as he attempted to step across a fallen log.

Warning Given Public That Some War Souvenirs May Be Highly Explosive

Twenty-four war souvenirs in the form of high explosives have been discovered in various parts of Oregon during the past year, according to Col. Arthur M. Sheets, state civil defense director. He stated that persons finding explosives of any type—bombs or small ordnance—should immediately give this information to the local civil defense organization or police agency.

Dangerous explosives uncovered recently range from a 37 millimeter ant-aircraft shell and rocket found at King's Valley earlier this month to a 2000-pound sea mine found at Cape Meares in April.

"With Korean veterans returning home, people should be on the lookout for supposedly harmless war souvenirs," said Colonel Sheets. "A dud is apt to be dangerous and should not be moved or jarred."

Major Werner Dinteman, commanding officer of 522nd Explosive Ordnance, Control Detachment, Ft. Lewis, Wash., reported to the state civil defense agency that once shells or rockets have been fired, their fuses become armed and might explode after being jarred.

"Picking up and moving any item suspected of being unexploded ordnance is like playing Russian Roulette," he said. "A person finding unexploded ordnance should leave it where it is, mark it as being dangerous and report the item to the nearest civil defense agency, police or public official for action. This is the same procedure to follow during a war emergency."

Mr. Edler, who is in his late 80's, lived in the Santiam Canyon for many years and was employed as a sawyer and saw filer in various small mills. He now has the hobby of growing myrtle trees from seed, something that has been said was an impossibility.

Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Lettie Swan also visited Mrs. Norman Garrison who has been at Good Samaritan hospital for several weeks.

During the business meeting the lodge donated money to help in feeding the searchers of Clarence Johnson.

Following the business meeting the drill team practiced in preparation for initiatory work which will be given at the next meeting. Candidates for initiation will be Mrs. R. Thomas and Mrs. R. F. Andreasen.

The committee for the evening were Eda Stafford, Carmen Barnhardt, Jessie Heath and Hattie Cole.

Home Made Pole Holds TV Antenna

Over in Gates, W. R. Hutchison has a plan that beats the high cost of installing a television pole to hold his TV antenna.

He had a friend of his bring in a 60 foot pole. This he has placed at the rear of his building in Gates and on top of the pole he has his TV antenna. When asked how he turned it to get it in proper position he showed us a hole in the pole. He said: "All I do is place a bar in the hole and turn it to whatever position is best."
