Mrs. Carey Reports Bears In Park Cause Excitement

GATES—Mrs. Velma Carey returned to her home Sunday from a vacation trip with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carey and granddaughters, Diane and Beverly of Portland. They went through Idaho, West Glacier, Mont., stopped at Lewis and Clark Cavern and saw the Grand Teton National Park, then on to Yellowstone where they camped for about a week.

Bears were numerous this year. They counted 107, and were rudely awakened one night by one who had gotten into camp and "took a shine" to the neighbor's portable ice chest. Not being able to open it, he tossed it like a basketball, and became vicious and did a bit of boxing—sending all the watchers to cover. Next day the owner put the portable chest into the litter barrel—a total loss.

Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Allen Honored on Birthdays

A group of ladies of the Presbyterian church held a no-host luncheon at Fellowship hall at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, honoring the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. W. W. Allen and Mrs. D. B. Hill.

At the close of the luncheon, each of the guests of honor was presented with a decorated birthday cake and many congratulatory cards.

A contest to identify each guest by her baby picture was won by Mrs. Harry Mason. Consolation prize went to Mrs. J. F. Potter, who had the most unique picture, however, it being an old tin-type of herself and her twin brother, the late Ellis Hill. Mrs. C. M. Cline was in charge of the entertainment for the afternoon. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Lester Hathaway, president of the Presbyterian Women's association.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Howe of Portland spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Howe.

Polished Floors in Homes Hazardous

Hurried mothers in the kitchen are headed down the road toward the hospital with accident injuries, warns Barbara Fessler, Marion County extension agent.

Many women would never drive over 35 on the highway, but you would never know it by the way they speed around the kitchen. And accidents in the home cause almost as many deaths as automobile accidents. Recently, a Marion County woman fell on a waxed floor and jammed together the discs in her back.

Waxed, shiny floors look nice, but they're too often slick and dangerous. It's better to have a less polished floor, but one that is safer to walk on.

Slow down, take it easy, and think about your kitchen. How can you eliminate unsafe and dangerous working habits?

The first and most important habit to acquire for safety's sake is the planning habit. Planning plays big dividends in the saving of time and strength and reducing fatigue.

Many women have found that planning their kitchen work was their biggest time-saving device. A plan of work for kitchen duties is like a road map. It routes the homemaker to a destination so that even though she strikes a "detour" she will reach her goal more quickly and safely.

For example, meals may be planned by the day or by the week. The further ahead they are planned, the more rush and bustle and health hazards can be eliminated. If food shopping is planned along with the meals, such hazards can be reduced still further.

The next step in developing safe working habits in the kitchen is to streamline yourself. Wear clothes that will not catch on protruding objects. Pockets, ruffles, and sashes can be hazardous. Since high heels cause fatigue and might cause tripping, wear low-heeled shoes.

Examine your tools and equipment to see that they are the best and safest for the tasks to be done. Study the labels to see whether the products contribute to safety.

Before using your equipment study the instructions for use and care. Check and inspect all electrical equipment carefully at stated intervals. Clean and oil as directed by the manufacturer. Before cleaning, make sure the current is off and the appliance cool.

Disconnect electrical appliances by pulling the plug, not the cord, from the outlet.

Keep electric cords and appliances dry, and never touch them with wet hands or while standing on a wet floor. All appliances which are used in damp spots should have moisture-resistant cords.

When a fuse blows, find out the cause and correct it. Then put in a new fuse of proper size—not a penny or other substitute.

As a safety precaution, kitchen tools should always be selected very carefully. It is very important to choose pots and pans with rigid handles and sturdy bottoms. Sharp knives are safer than dull ones since they require less pressure and, therefore, do not slip so easily during cutting.

Examine your methods of working. An organized work surface is an excellent safety device in itself. When equipment and supplies are stored near or in the work center in which they will be needed there is less danger of accidents resulting from disorder and haphazard working arrangements.

In all your kitchen activities "think" and ask yourself "Am I doing this the safe way?" When the National Safety Council reports that 85% of all accidents are due to human failure of some kind, it is easy to see that kitchen safety needs constant attention.
