Hawaiian Writes Poem About Life At Breitenbush

The following poem was written by a vacationer from Hawaii, who spent some time at Breitenbush.

"To the Malahini (Newcomer) at Breitenbush."

On summer mornings clear and still
You'll need a fire to cut the chill.
If you MUST "rush about" at dawn
To get things done; while later on
When Breitenbush's summer sun
Has warmed the air; it's lots more fun
To do the things you've planned to do,
So, why the rush and what's the "stew?"
These things won't all get done in a day
Or even a year, if you could stay.
Plans are forgotten to "do as you please,"
And to you, like us, comes a life of ease.
Far from the world and it's rushing pace,
At peace with the world—you'll love this place.

We'll have our breakfast o'er by 10.
Ready and fit for the day to begin.
Then we'll "gab" or "soak" or hike or fish
Or do the other things that we really wish,
Until the clock once more says 10,
When we'll snuggle deep in our blankets again.
All things that every tired 'soul' could wish
We've found them here at Breitenbush,
And the days roll by so calm and serene,
That the time goes on like a Heavenly dream.

This 'til some "Malahini" arrives at dawn,
Fresh from the world of work and brown,
He's escaped from a job that starts at 4,
So thrilled;—no sleep the night before,—
That he "roars" into camp, feeling 'right on the beam,'
Not thinking of us in the midst of our dream
He's hungry and chilly, so after a while
He starts hunting wood and discovers the pile
Where he chops, like the fate of the world was at stake,
Until all of us dreamers are plumb awake.

For, if we happen to wake at four,
We only turn and resume the snore
And even at the hour of five
There's few of us that "come alive."
At six, we "snooze" away with ease,
Nor give a thought to floors that "freeze."
The sun begins to warm by 7
But we sleep on, our bed's like heaven.
And when to 8 the clock has gone
We slowly start to turn and yawn.
Perhaps we'll rise before it's nine
To start the fire. Outside it's warm and fine.

We know, that he doesn't want to miss
Even a moment of Breitenbush bliss.
That he's making the most of his two-day escape
From a world of worry, hard work and "red tape,"
But we'll always wish, he could spend a week,
And discover the peace, that we come here to seek;
'Til he could lie for hours with Never a stir,
In the sun by the river or in the shade of a fir.

are announcing the birth of another daughter, Julie Ann, born at Santiam Memorial hospital in Stayton. Mrs. Neal and infant returned home Sunday.

Weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Stevens were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gustafson from Duluth, Minn., and Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Landsverk and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hanson of Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Roy are receiving congratulations upon the birth of twin girls, Deborah Irene, and Deloris Louise, born Sunday, July 17 at the Salem Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hollingshead have as their guest their granddaughter Miss Kay Adams from Cloverdale.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jobe spent several days at the coast. They reported it cold and windy there.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hollingshead and granddaughter, Kay Adams are spending several days this week at Camp Sherman on the Metolius.

A large crowd attended the Go-Kart races held at the new track east of Lyons Sunday afternoon. The newly built track is up to date. There will be races there again Sunday, July 31.

John Kunkle, who underwent surgery on his back in Portland is now convalescing at his home here.

Only then, would he carefully muffle his screams
And think of the others, in the midst of their dreams,
Only then, when he wanted a fire, would he stop,
And think of the dreamers, before he would chop;
If he wanted a fire anytime before eight
He would do it quietly, or else he would wait.
No sound more than whispers would pass his lips,
And he'd sneak to the woodpile to gather chips.
For he's know the joy of "eating high on the ham"
Here at Breitenbush Camp on the North Santiam.
The Kanka-Haole,
Molokai's "old man"

IN THIS PUMP...THE 'REGULAR' GASOLINE THAT CAN BRING BACK LOST POWER

Because Shell is the "Regular" Gasoline with TCP

TCP* stops spark plug "miss"—major cause of power loss in today's cars. It unleashes the full power of Shell Regular which is actually higher in performance than the premium gasolines of a short time ago.

Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. The above statements may also apply to other companies which produce high octane gasoline if they are licensed by Shell to use TCP.
