Eppersons Return Home From 8,000 Mile Trip Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Epperson and son Charles returned Friday from a trip that took them over 8,000 miles.

They visited with relatives in Lillian, Alabama, Pensacola, Florida, Idaho, Utah and Texas. They took in many scenic spots on the trip including a visit to the Mormon Church in Utah where they heard an organ concert; Mesa Verda National Park in Utah where they viewed the Indian Cliff dweller caves; National Arch Monument also in Utah; the French quarters in New Orleans; the Big Bend National Park along the Rio Grande.

Mrs. Epperson said one experience they would never forget was the hurricane Carla in Texas—although they didn't get caught in it they were just one jump ahead of it several times. Their visit with relatives in Texas City was cut short because of it and they left the town bumper to bumper with the people evacuating the area. They celebrated their 24th wedding anniversary with a dinner at the Sea Wall Restaurant in Galveston, Texas, where all the windows were boarded with the exception of one—where they could watch the high waves rolling in as the hurricane was coming from the sea. All the business houses were boarded up and the four lane highway that borders the sea wall was closed the next day. However, the Eppersons were on their way by late afternoon.

Kenneth Epperson who is stationed at Ft. Benning spent a week with his parents and with other relatives while they were in Alabama. Mrs. Epperson said because of the Berlin crisis he would not be out of the service until next March. He had expected to be home in time for Christmas.

Little Chats On Public Notices

By James E. Pollard

An 8-line newspaper advertisement gave notice of the annual meeting of the local unit of the American Cancer Society. The time and place were given. The notice carried the signature of the president and it was published only once.

Probably nothing earth-shaking came up at the meeting. In all likelihood only routine business was in prospect, with a review of the society's activities and accomplishments during the year, reports of officers and of committees, and election of officers. But notice was given to members, as well as to the public of the impending meeting 16 days hence.

This situation has its parallel in meetings or other actions by similar public interest groups. It has a particular parallel in the business field where the public notice is used for such matters as the annual meeting of the company or corporation. It is often used also for the announcement of the declaration of dividends, quarterly or otherwise.

Here again the public notice, or legal advertising serves a particular purpose or meets a particular need. It is both a matter of giving information to people concerned and of going on record. The bona fide newspaper of general circulation is a preferred medium for this purpose. In so doing, it renders another service to the public, but in this case as provided by law, and usually at relatively low cost. In short, it is both economical and effective.

Low-Calorie Sour Cream
Sour cream has recently enjoyed great popularity as a basis for "dips" and salad dressings and as a topping for baked potatoes. To nullify the disadvantage of a "calorie problem," T. J. Claydon of the dairy husbandry staff of Kansas State University has developed a method of making low-fat, cultured sour cream. To it, he adds small amounts of monoglyceride and gelatin, which act as stabilizing agents. Thus treated, the low-fat sour cream can be whipped and will maintain a good consistency. If made available commercially, it would be cheaper than high-fat cream, as well as lower in calories.

Dried Potato Slices on Market

A major company is now distributing a new convenience food, "Quick Cook Potato Slices". Sliced 1-3/2 inch thick, the potatoes are partly cooked, then dried. Reconstituted in water the slices swell to 1-8 inch and cook in about half the usual time. They are processed with small amounts of calcium chloride for firmness and sodium sulphite to lengthen shelf-life and protect the natural white color of raw potatoes. They may be used in any recipe calling for raw or cooked potato slices, such as casseroles, potato salad or home fries.

Easy Dessert: Mashed Peaches

For an easy, quick, fruit flavored dessert, add mashed peaches to ice cream or ice milk. Place in ice tray and keep plenty available.

Have a Heart

Next time your meat man is featuring heart, why not buy some of this tasty meat to give variety to your menus? The usual way to prepare heart is to stuff and bake it. Cube it and use in a stew with vegetables or make it into a tasty chop suey dish.

Clean Roof Gutters Soon

Now is a good time to get roof gutters cleaned out before fall rains begin. Plugged gutters and downspouts can cause streaks on exterior paint, and oftentimes causes water to flow into the house or basement. After the gutters are cleaned,

Smokehouse For Wild Game

Hunters and fishermen can get much more enjoyment and value out of their game with a portable smoker. Plans for building such a smoker are contained in O. S. U. Extension Bulletin 788, "A Smokehouse for the Sportsman and Hobbyist." A companion bulletin is OSU Extension Bulletin 790, "Game Foods." This latter publication tells how to prepare all kinds of game. Copies are available at County Extension Offices.

For an extra crisp finish on full petticoats, use full strength plastic starch after the garment is dry. Blot out excess starch with a bath towel. Let petticoat dry, then sprinkle and iron. Heavy starch scorches easily so use a low temperature for ironing.

BETTER LIVING FROM TREES
HOMES FROM TREE FARMS
...grow every day!
It requires about 10,000 board feet of lumber, or the annual growth from 50 acres of well managed forestland, to build a six-room house. We are building more than a million new homes a year. That's why Tree Farming—the growing of trees as a crop—is important to all citizens. More than that—Tree Farming means multiple use of our lands for many values of the forests.
