A 25 year old Mill City logger, Kenneth Lawrence Brand, was killed last Thursday in a logging accident on the Little North Fork. He was employed as choker setter for the Wilson Logging Company.

Police officers said Brand was setting a chain on a log when he was crushed by another log. Death was apparently instantaneous.

Services were held Sunday at the Weddle Funeral Chapel in Stayton with interment in the Lone Oak Cemetery.

Water Supply Not Good at Present Time

The 1963 water supply outlook in Willamette Valley during the April-September period is generally "fair" with "poor" late season conditions expected in many streams, according to a report released today by T. P. Helseth, State Conservationist, for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service cooperating with Oregon State University and State Engineer. Snow pack is nearly record low for February 1.

Water content of the mountain snowpack is 16 percent of the average (1943-57) and only one-fifth of the snow at this date last year.

It is highly unlikely that remaining winter storms will "make up" the present shortage of snow cover. In fact, the shortage is so great that normal snowfall occurring between now and April 1 will increase the total snowpack to only 50 percent of average.

Watershed soils have been well primed by rainfall and will favor runoff from snowmelt at the time of runoff.

The six major reservoirs in the Willamette Basin are multipurpose and are operated by the Corps of Army Engineers according to a pre-arranged plan. These reservoirs will begin to fill as spring runoff commences.

Streamflow during January was only 9 percent (preliminary date from U. S. Geological Survey, Portland, Oregon) of the average on the Middle Fork of the Willamette. The April-September flow is forecast to be 68 percent of the 1943-57 average. The North Santiam should flow 62 percent for the same period, the McKenzie 67 percent, and the Clackamas 70 percent of average.

Forecast for the Willamette at Salem is for a runoff of 3,800,000 acre feet or 70 percent average April through September.

The above forecasts are made on the assumption that snowfall between now and April 1 will be normal.

Statewide, Oregon's water supply outlook for the spring and summer months of 1963 is extremely poor except where adequate reservoir facilities can provide stored water. Reservoirs continue to gain storage from recent heavy rains and melting of snow up to elevations of 7000 feet. Snowpack is nearly record low and summer streamflow will be much below average resulting in drastic "shortages" for most lands without access to stored water supplies.

The next report on snow surveys and water supply conditions will be issued on March 8, 1963.

GAA To Collect For March Of Dimes

The GAA girls of Santiam Union High school will conduct a delayed March of Dimes program, Thursday, February 13, immediately after school.

The original date was cancelled because of bad weather conditions at the time.

The Mill City Lions club is sponsoring the March of Dimes drive campaign again this year, according to Lee Bassett, president.

Rep. Detering To Be Here Again Sat.

Representative Gerald Detering will be in Mill City at the Enterprise office at 10 a. m. this Saturday. He was here two weeks ago to meet with constituents who had problems to discuss with him.

He said "this year's legislature is examining various budgets with a fine toothed comb.

"Even the budgets of departments using dedicated funds are being closely examined by the committees" he said.

"In a session where it is generally agreed that we will have to increase taxes, it is most heartening to see the members of the legislature take a 'look see' attitude. I think this is the result of pressure from the people throughout the State who recognize that government expenditures have about reached the saturation point," he said.

Health Officials To Investigate Hepatitis Case

IDANHA—A report of a case of infectious hepatitis here is expected to result in a visit to the area by health officials from Marion and Linn counties.
