Mrs. Rhoten Shows African Slides at Woman's Club Meet

Mill City Women's club members, meeting at the home of Mrs. Clifford Swift Tuesday evening enjoyed an interesting evening when Mrs. George Rhoten of Salem showed slides, on a trip she and her husband had taken to Africa. Mrs. Rhoten also gave a vivid commentary on life and customs in Africa as the pictures were shown.

Particularly interesting were the many outstanding pictures taken of the wild beasts in Africa. Then in striking contrast were the beautiful modern churches, government buildings and luxurious hotels. Of course the thatched roof and dirt floor huts used by the natives were extremely crude.

Mrs. Rhoten said at the time they took the trip there were practically no American tourists but a number from Britain. Even in the heart of the jungle, on a guided tour, the Britishers stopped for tea, often made from water boiled in a huge black pot.

Soft drinks or beer are a great favorite there and no one drinks water without it first being boiled unless they wish to totally disregard the consequences.

She had a number of interesting pictures of the natives and the "pay" for posing was a soft drink, candy bar or an occasional small coin.

An interesting sidelight on the animal pictures were some beautiful shots of the Impala, a sleek graceful animal, for which a well-known model of car is named.

Accompanying Mrs. Rhoten to Mill City was Mrs. Lou Stanley, a long time friend of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ross. Mrs. Rhoten is a sister of Lee Ross. Another guest for the evening was Mrs. Irving Steers.

Mrs. Edith Mason conducted a short business meeting following the program.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Emory Primeau when Chris Sorensen will be guest speaker.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Swift, Mrs. Francis Bodker and Mrs. Mel Rambo. Assisting with furnishing was Mrs. Jerry Pittam.

RAMBO'S RAMBLINGS

I am not clever like the boss and when he says aren't you going to write a column (so called) this week—it isn't always possible to dash one off, which is probably just as well. But writing has always been a means of expression for me—I can hear some of you saying "how about all that talking"—but just look how much worse it might be if I didn't write a little also.

So like the man says—"I am going to write a column."

What a madhouse of activity this week—all kinds of interesting and exciting things going on including the birthday of the teen-age daughter at our house—and in the midst of all the semester exams she probably won't have time for a bite of cake.

One thing that deserves your special attention is the appearance of the Oregon Journal Juniors at the Mill City Elementary gym the evening of January 25. This famed group of youngsters certainly will be worth seeing and hearing and the AFS, sponsoring group is worthy of your support.

It always seems a shame to me to have a talented group appear and so many times the audience is conspicuous by their absence. Don't forget that our own band is playing several selections at this time also.

In other words—tear yourself away from that TV set and see some live entertainment.

Those in this country that continually harp on the Welfare state, its abuses, etc., etc. should listen to the problems they have in England, which I am sure we think of as a more or less progressive country.

According to a press association report a survey made by a London school headmaster revealed some disconcerting information. The chief ambition of Britains high school students—on the average, was to get a nice safe job with a pension assured at retirement. "Nobody wants to be at the top of anything," was the headmaster's report.

Well, it does seem that security, if there is such a thing, has become too important. But who knows, perhaps it is the result of some of these youngsters seeing their parents work all their lives without much in the way of wage increase, benefits or recognition and dying as paupers.

Personally, I don't think there is such a thing as security, except for the fortunate few; because somehow or other it seems like something is always happening to "knock the props" out of the well-planned life.

I can't refrain from at least mentioning the subject of cigarette smoking—after all it is the main subject of conversation nowadays.

Not being a cigaret smoker—

I think it is a dirty, expensive habit, besides the fact that actually we ALWAYS knew it didn't help our health any.

Friend hubby and most of my other smoking friends tend to laugh off the report and say, "I could walk across the road tomorrow and get killed."

Well everyone to their own habits and their own reforms—but I notice Mel is dropping more ashes lately—the report no doubt makes him nervous as he lights up another.

By the way—what well known insurance agent have I seen this week smoking more cigars than cigarettes?

From the sublime to the ridiculous—as I was getting out some "Christmas towels" to use the other day it reminded me of a little quip I read in my favorite little condensed magazine.

Taking her cue from the traditional His and Hers bath towels, a career girl had her towels emblazoned "Mine."

A woman who had been married many times had her towels monogrammed "Hers" and "To Whom it May Concern." A sign of our times?? Anyway I read in the dailies the other day that legislators are going to try and enact laws to make it harder to get married and also more difficult to get a divorce.
