CREDIT BUREAU OF LEBANON

Rob Robertson, Manager

When considering an agency to handle those accounts receivable it might be wise to make a check list. Do they have the competent knowledge? Do they have a respected and qualified background of service? Do they belong to a collection association? Are they qualified as an agency which will retain the account and the customer as well? Will their services cost you money if they don't collect? Do they handle small accounts; medium sum accounts; and large accounts? Do they have the qualified and experienced personnel capable of helping the debtor to revise his budget which will be beneficial to you and to him? Are they capable of going anywhere to collect your "accounts receivable?" You can check all of these questions yes if you are considering the Credit Bureau of Lebanon at 824 Main in Lebanon. They are truly collection specialists, are widely respected, and are members of the Oregon Association. This Trade Center Review suggests that to check your check list best, you check with the Credit Bureau of Lebanon at 824 Main in Lebanon.
