State Revenue Down, Budget Woes Rising

If President Johnson's proposed 10 per cent surcharge on federal taxes goes through Congress as anticipated, Oregon stands to lose some $6.5 million in state tax revenue in the next two years.

This gloomy prediction, recently voiced by Oregon's House Speaker F. F. (Monte) Montgomery (R-Eugene), compounds problems of a state treasury already revising downward its anticipated revenue estimates by about $30 million. (Main reason for the depressing effect of any federal tax hike is Oregon's allowing of state income taxpayers to deduct federal taxes they pay from state-taxable income—the more money that goes to Uncle Sam, the less is subject to Oregon taxation.)

A couple of weeks ago Lee Quiring, director of Oregon's Department of Finance, elaborated on state economic and tax revenue difficulties before the Legislative Fiscal Committee, a permanent interim body.

Personal income tax collections for the 1965-67 biennium totaled only $300.7 million, he reported, significantly below the $316 million anticipated by former Gov. Mark Hatfield and the $313 million figured in Gov. Tom McCall's proposed budget. Actual 1965-67 collections of corporate income and excise taxes amounted to $63.3 million, down $2.3 million from planned revenue.

These lags resulted in an ending general fund balance for the biennium of $21.7 million. Quiring reported—a figure well below the predicted $32 million or the $39 million balance with which the 1965-67 period began.

Aside from these beginning balances, Quiring said, general fund revenues now are expected to show biennial growth in a range of $35 million to $65 million. This would anticipate an increase from $476 million in 1965-67 general fund receipts from all sources, up to a range for the next biennium of $511 million to $541 million.

General fund appropriations, however, total $588 million for 1967-68, reflecting an increase of about 19 per cent over 1965-67 expenditures—and threatening a deficit of from $25 million to $55 million for the next two years. Because deficit financing is Constitutionally prohibited lawmakers either would have to raise taxes or cut appropriations.

Pvt. Robert McCall Completes Marine Corps Training

Marine Private Robert L. McCall, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. McCall of Mill City, Oreg., has completed four weeks of individual combat training at this Marine Corps Base.

During his more than 200 hours of training, he learned about weapons and combat veteran instructors. They taught him how to conduct combat patrols, detect and remove mines and booby traps and use the standard Marine Corps infantry weapons.

He now will receive at least four weeks of specialist training before being assigned to his first permanent unit. Marines going to combat units will detailed training in the particular combat skill they are designated for. Those who are going into technical fields will receive their advanced training at one of a variety of technical schools throughout the country.
