Rev. and Mrs. Don
Andrews Visiting Here

Rev. and Mrs. Don Andrews from St. Johns, Wn., are spending a two week vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shaw.

Saturday and Sunday they visited friends in Westside and Eugene and Mr. and Mrs. Shaw visited her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Bernaski at Drain and the Andrews joined them later on Sunday.

Robert Andrews, from Vernonia, father of Don spent two nights at the Shaw home and attended the State Fair with his son and family. Mr. and Mrs. Bowman from Hubbard were dinner guests one day.

The Andrews were dinner guests one day at Monmouth at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Lynnton Elwell. They will be returning to their home in St. Johns the last of the week.

Both are graduates of the Stayton Union High School. Miss Grosso is presently employed with Pacific Northwest Bell Telephone Company in Salem. Mr. Champ attended Oregon Technical Institute in Klamath Falls. No date has been set for the wedding.

American Women Are Workers,
Statistics Show

American women are workers—statistics verify it, says Roberta C. Frasier, Oregon State University Extension family life specialist.

More than 26 million women work for pay away from home, in a family business, or on a family farm, according to figures compiled by the Institute of Life Insurance. The make up more than a third of all workers in this country.

More than half of all working women combine outside jobs with homemaking, Mrs. Frasier notes.

Why do they do it? Obviously, women work to earn money for themselves and their families. Married women, by boosting the family income, may do it to maintain higher levels of living and health. Frequently, their income helps to provide more education for the children or to build retirement security.

About half the American working wives are in families where joint incomes range from $5,000 to $10,000. Proportionately, however, more wives work among families with incomes from $10,000 to $12,000. At the $12,000 level, the percentage of wives who work goes down.

A 1965 Census Bureau report accentuates reason why married women are working. Of a million married couples where the husband was unemployed, over 44 per cent of the wives were bringing home paychecks. The wife's employment might be considered a form of insurance against the loss of all the family's earned income, Mrs. Frasier suggests.

A woman heads one in ten families in this country, and about half of these families have children under 18. Some 2½ million women heading families have jobs working to support and educate their youngsters. For many of these women, there may be no choice but to work, says Mrs. Frasier.

If, however, a woman has the option of working or being a full-time homemaker, there are some guidelines for making the decision the family life specialist says.

First, and most important, she must be clear in her own mind why she wants to work.

Women who have special talents or training gain personal satisfaction from working. Or they can make a contribution to the community, and feel they are better wives and mothers when they spend some time away from home.

"Let's face it," says Mrs. Frasier. "There are some women who are not cut out to be full-time homemakers and mothers. Their families may be better off if they devote their energies outside the home and use the money they earn to provide the family services. Such women may be better wives and mothers when they're not stuck with the job 24 hours a day."

Why a woman chooses to work doesn't matter, as long as she and her husband understand the reason, and accept it, according to the OSU family life specialist.

But regardless of the season, one essential must not be overlooked—providing adequate care for the children.

Mrs. Gordy McMorris
Visits Scotland Pen Pal

Mrs. Gordon McMorris who is on vacation from her duties at U. S. bank here, flew to Chicago Thursday morning. From Chicago she went by bus to Rockford, Ill., where she was met by Mrs. W. J. Keehnen and taken to her home.

Purpose of the trip was to meet her pen pal, Mrs. David MacLennan from Inverness, Scotland. Mrs. McMorris and Mrs. MacLennan have corresponded for 20 years. Both have married since that time and Mrs. MacLennan is the mother of three boys.

Mrs. MacLennan, accompanied her mother, Mrs. Eva King and her sister, Mrs. Wilfred Campbell to Rockford, where they will spend a month visiting Mrs. King's sister, Mrs. Keehnen. The sisters had not seen each other for 30 years. She was married to an American soldier during World War I and following the war came to the U. S. to make her home. Both sisters are now widows and Mrs. Keehnen now makes her home with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Keehnen and their four teenage children, Peter, Patrick, Ann and Owen.

Mrs. McMorris arrived before Mrs. MacLennan as their plane was held over for three hours at Toronto, Can. While waiting Mrs. McMorris spent the night at the home of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hudgins (Joan Johnson,) Sherry and Brian.

Friday morning she returned to the Keehnen home and visited with her pen pal until late Saturday afternoon when she returned home.

Vandals Destroy Government Property
At Army Corps of Engineers Projects

More than 20 acts of vandalism at Corps of Engineers' reservoirs in the Willamette Valley and on the Columbia River have been committed recently according to Colonel Robert L. Bangert, Portland U. S. Army District Engineer. He said Government property destruction annually costs the taxpayers thousands of dollars.

In each instance the Federal Bureau of Investigation is notified and in most cases stolen property is recovered and the culprit apprehended.

Destruction of picnic tables, cutting of project trees, stealing traffic counters and accessories from equipment, breaking windows, and stealing life rings at the reservoirs are just a few of the incidents taking place.

Colonel Bangert has asked any one noticing an act of vandalism in progress at any Corps of Engineers' reservoir to notify the project engineers. Too often, he said, citizens say they don't care to become involved. "But the citizens are involved," he added, "because the vandal is destroying or making off with property or materials which belong to the public and were purchased with tax funds."

Reservoirs where thefts and acts of vandalism have taken place recently are: Cottage Grove on the Coast Fork Willamette, Detroit on the North Santiam, Dorena on the Row, Fall Creek on Fall Creek, Fern Ridge on the Long Tom, Hills Creek and Lookout Point on the Middle Fork Willamette and The Dalles on the Columbia River.

No one should expect anything from a match but a flame. By its careless handling you risk the lives of your family as well as the destruction of your home and the loss of valuable personal property.

Sensible property owners do two things. They make fire prevention a day-by-day habit. They protect what they have from financial loss by insuring against the peril of fire with a qualified insurance representative. See this agency today, tomorrow may be too late.
