Presbyterian Women Hear Talk on Nigeria at Meeting

The evening's program for the regular meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Association at Fellowship hall Thursday night consisted of a talk by Mrs. Harry Mason on Nigeria in Africa where her daughter and family, the Delos Hoeyes of Corvallis, spent last year. Mrs. Mason told of the many tribes, languages, and living conditions of the far-away country, pointing to certain spots on the map she had drawn. There are 300,000,000 people in Africa, with approximately 60,000,000 in Nigeria.

Following the program a short business meeting was conducted. An "open letter" from Pastor James Murray was read to the group.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Clyde Rogers, who chose as her topic "Obedience," telling of the origin of the familiar hymn, "Trust and Obey," and reading a number of references from the Scriptures.

The next meeting of the Association is scheduled for the home of Mrs. Herbert Schroeder on the fourth Thursday in October.

Bid or Bunch Club Has Candle Light Party at Gordon Home

Bid or Bunch Pinochle club members closed their party Monday evening with a gala candle-light affair; not planned but wind enforced.

The party was held at the home of Edna Gordon who served a dessert prior to the evening of cards. The hostess had been "standing by" with candles as the lights were flickering due to the high winds that evening and sure enough there was a power failure about 9 o'clock.

Edna Lady received the high prize with Bobbi Budding receiving low and Elsie Ohmart, pinochle.

The next party will be October 16 at the home of Elsie Ohmart.

Guests Monday evening were Jean Rosamond, Donna Podrabsky and Bobbi Budding.

After the dessert was served three tables of pinochle were in play with Alta Moffatt receiving high prize, Frances Alban, pinochle, and Ruth Tohl the low prize. Wilma Moore was a guest of the evening.

The next party will be October 16 at the home of Mabel Yankus.

If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them. —(John 13:17).

A smile can do many things, it can even reflect our gratefulness to God and our joy in living. Many persons have been helped, cheered, encouraged, or spurred on to new efforts by a smile because it implies that one wants to be helpful.

RAMBO'S RAMBLINGS

Goldie Rambo

Have you ever become involved? I can see the lifted eyebrows with everyone saying, "Well, who hasn't." But I mean forgetting all else and rushing to help someone in distress.

I had attended a dinner meeting of the Lions Auxiliary last Thursday evening and we had been discussing that very thing—and wondering what we, as a club could do to make more people become involved — without stopping to think, as too many folks do nowadays when they see an accident or someone injured—how will this affect me.

On Friday I visited my daughter at Mt. Angel and as we approached the city center at the stop sign on Highway 214, an accident occurred practically beside us. I was so shocked at the suddenness of it—that in the split second before it registered with me my daughter called out, "My God, why doesn't someone do something"—and she was out of the car and the first one on the scene where an elderly man had been badly injured in a two-car accident.

She did what she could to make him comfortable, her roommate, who was also in our car, called the injured man's son. Laura was there until the police, ambulance and others arrived.

But what I am getting at—not until I got home did I suddenly think, well, we got involved in a way that make some people hesitate. But am glad that is the way we are made—act first and think later. If any aftermath were to occur from an act of kindness think I would fight my own battle in court. I might not win but I bet by golly, I would have my say. Think it's too bad we are living in a world where we have to stop and think—will I be sued before we can go to the assistance of a fellow man.

Guess that's why I'm a hawk—not a dove.

In reading an article written by our faithful correspondent at Detroit, Boots Champion—it really brought back memories; not those of over a hundred years ago—after all, I just LOOK that way sometimes.

But my husband's people were among the very first settlers at Detroit—way back at the turn of the century—with his father a woods boss for the old Curtis Lumber company and we have heard many tales of pioneering up there. Some of the roaring in the saloons and bunkhouses in the "old days" were just like you see on the old westerns that are so "absorbing."

My memories up that way start when the old passenger trains used to run that route. When my husband (boy-friend then) and I were going together his family used to camp up there. Mel, Lola (his sister) and I used to ride up on the train for an occasional weekend with them. That old train used to seem real "plush" with its red velvet seats and everything—and even in my youth the fact that the scenery was astounding on the run certainly made an impression.

Then later—when Mel had his old Model T we used to drive up to Breitenbush over the corkscrew roads. We really had some thrills, especially one day when we met the old Hamond stage coming out around a bend and Melbourne pulled over as far as he dared; here we were hanging on a cliff (it seemed) and I was looking hundreds of feet down into the river. Well, as we old timers say—those were the days!

Which brings a laugh to mind—about age, I mean. I was out having coffee with my husband and my boss the other day—I was sitting between the two men, looking at a new magazine. Genial John Muir said, "Now if that isn't a sign of age—out with two men and reading a magazine."

'Tis sad but true—but what a shame that wisdom (?) is wasted on the old.
