PTA Dinner To Be Held At Grade School Gym Friday, Nov. 15

The annual PTA ham dinner will be held Friday, November 15, at the Mill City Grade School gym with serving to be from 5:30 until 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Ollie Muise and Mrs. R. D. Sharp are in charge of this main money-raising event of the year for PTA. Proceeds are used for the school's scholarship fund, kindergarten and summer recreation program.

Those in charge say that extra food has been ordered this year so that there will be plenty, even for late arrivals. In the past, large crowds coming earlier in the evening had made the food supply run short. But not so this year!

Advance ticket sales are being made and they will also be on sale at the door.

Rainbow girls will be serving the dinner and there will be entertainment throughout the evening. Everyone is urged to come out and enjoy an evening of good food and entertainment, all for a worthwhile cause.

hours of preparation time for one of the test meals.

This means you're getting about 9 cents an hour for your work. But it's up to you, whether you can better afford the time or the slight extra cost, or whether you choose lower cost convenience foods.

For Consumer month, Mrs. Dorothy F. Brown, Oregon State University Extension home furnishings specialist, offers this suggestion. If you buy a new upholstered chair or sofa, you'll be money ahead if you buy the best quality upholstery material that the family budget can take. Nylon and olefin are very durable fibers, but the weave is important, too.

Tightly twisted yarns, closely woven with equally heavy yarns in both directions, make for long-wearing fabrics. Good quality pile fabrics also give satisfactory wear.

Re-upholstering a chair with durable fabric may cost you about $100. For a sofa, figure about $200 to re-upholster. Buying good quality upholstery in new furniture will help delay this expense for several more years.

Will you cook the big holiday meal this year, Organize—don't agonize. First plan you: menu and consider what's possible in your kitchen and with the time you have.

Look over your cooking utensils. If you're cooking for 16 or more, it may be wise to borrow or rent a restaurant size coffee pot or other utensils. Count your china, silver, and glasses and arrange to borrow what you need.

How will you seat your guests—at a large table, card tables or both?

Think about table linen to go with your tables. For napkins, consider paper ones which come in appropriate colors and designs.

Write a complete shopping list. Before you shop, make space in the refrigerator for the extra food. Check the ice cube supply.

Set up a schedule for the week so you can do many of the jobs in advance. Don't be a wilted hostess on the big day.

If your kitchen cabinets do not reach all the way to the ceiling, the tops will be good dust catchers.

Put several layers of newspaper on the tops. These need not show. As dust collects, simply peel off the top layer of paper and discard it.
