HOME SWEET HOME!

CHAOS IN CONSTRUCTION

One of the greatest problems facing us today is adequate housing for American families within their financial ability to rent or buy.

There has been utter confusion as to where the housing responsibility lies. Some say, "Let Uncle Sam do it with public projects." But overburdened taxpayers, including those in need of housing, see the dangers of this approach.

Some earnest citizens blame zoning laws, others the building codes. These points are debatable. The basic answer may be found in a single word: money.

The National Association of Manufacturers has become concerned with the accelerating building costs and has published a study entitled, "Chaos in the Construction Industry."

The opening paragraph sums up the story: "Labor conditions in the $90 billion construction industry have reached proportions which demand the urgent attention of both the private and public sectors. Aggravated by highly inflationary contract settlements, excessive work stoppages and stifling work practices, the labor problems in this industry present a dramatic threat to the national economy as well as to the industry in general."

While the private non-farm economy experienced a 2.9 per cent annual increase in productivity from 1959 to 1966, the construction industry experienced a 3 percent annual decrease in productivity for the same period. The median wage increases in construction have gone up three times that of other industries.

Isn't it about time that labor leaders consider their responsibility to the public in this issue?

Forest Users Should Be Careful; More Fires Set

DETROIT—Forester Jerry Lynn, Detroit Ranger station, said Monday that the 40-acre forest fire in the Slate Creek area which began July 21 near Detroit is now out, but that officials are keeping a watchful eye on the area.

At its peak on last Tuesday, some 250 men, plus smoke jumpers, helicopter and heavy equipment battled the blaze believed to be man-caused. A Forest Service employee from the Blue River District, suffering from heat exhaustion was taken by Detroit ambulance to Santiam Memorial hospital at Stayton Wednesday. He was treated and released the following day. Forestry officials said investigation of the fire is being continued. Lynn said the District is having problems created by careless smokers and by some campfires that have not been put out before leaving. The public is again being warned to observe the rules and regulations when using the forests. It must be remembered the forest is not only a playground, but the home of many forest creatures, as well as the livelihood of many families in the area.

Lynn said three fires occurred over the weekend, a small one at Pamela Lake caused by a campfire, and two small fires which burned into one at Marion Creek, apparently caused by careless smokers. In addition two small fires occurred over the 4th of July weekend by careless people who failed to extinguish their campfires. These were in the Tumble Lake area, and the Scorpion Creek area on the Breitenbush.

A small fire in the Crown Lake area, inside the Primitive area, some 20 miles north and east of Detroit flared up Saturday afternoon from a holdover from a lightning storm last week, Lynn said. Smoke jumpers were called in from the Redmond Air Center Saturday afternoon and the blaze was brought under control Saturday night. The blaze was extinguished Sunday morning and the smoke jumpers returned to their base at Redmond.
