Newest Idea For Thrilling Grilling

Cook-outs are easy and fun for everyone, especially Mom, who doesn't have a greasy oven to clean. Hamburgers seem to top the list of favorites when it comes to outdoor cookery and we'd like to suggest a new crust to crown this appealing patty...

PRETZEL CRUSTED BURGERS
2 pounds ground lean chuck
2 eggs
1 small onion, chopped/
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
2 cups finely crushed pretzels (use food mill or blender to prepare crumbs)

Combine chuck, eggs, onion, pepper salt, garlic powder, tomato sauce and 1 cup of the pretzel crumbs. Mix well and shape into patties about 1/4 inch thick. Roll patties in remaining crumbs. Grill 6 inches above gray coals until brown and crusted on both sides. Serve on toasted hamburger buns with desired condiments.

no enforcement at the pedestrian or bike rider, and you see the size of the problem.

Bellamy emphasized these important points:

1. The big yellow school buses are rolling again... watch for them!
2. Crowded streets near schools often call for a lower than posted speed... slow down!
3. Kids are great for excitement and prone to move by impulse (12 killed last year)... be alert.
4. Boys and girls ride bikes... teach them the law and see that they obey!
5. Walkers die too... common sense and many laws direct walking facing traffic. See that your children KNOW and DO this!

"The Oregon Traffic Safety Commission believes that every boy and girl who is old enough to attend school should be developing a sense of responsibility toward his own safety on the streets and highways," Bellamy concluded, "but much responsibility rests with the individual driver to guard youngsters against injury and death as if they were his own children."

It's Your Law

Respect for Law Makes Democracy Live
BETWEEN YOU AND ME
John, alone with Edward in an elevator, said to him: "You are a crook."

Assuming that Edward is not a crook, could he collect damages for defamation of character? No, because nobody else heard what John said. Generally speaking, to "defame" someone is to injure his reputation. If no one hears the accusation except the accused person himself, then his reputation has not suffered at all. While a private, face-to-face insult might occasionally amount to a criminal offense, it is not grounds for a defamation suit unless there is a third party in the picture.

This applies not only to oral defamation (slander) but also to written defamation (libel). For example: A man wrote a bristling letter to the widow next door, accusing her of stealing his lawn mower. He happened to be wrong, and she sued him for defamation of character. But the court denied her claim, because the man had not made the charge known to anyone else.

Suppose that such a letter, although mailed to one particular individual, is also read by a third party. If the writer should have foreseen that eventually, then he may indeed be held responsible for making his accusation public. Thus: A wholesale grocery salesman, irked at one of his customers, wrote him a scurrilous letter. But the customer's secretary opened the letter and read it before passing it along to her boss.

Was the salesman liable for defamation? The court says yes, because he was familiar with the secretary's habit of checking the mail. The court said he should have foreseen that his accusations would become public just the way they did.

Back to School Means Watch Out For Youngsters

"Back-To-School" is the biggest highway safety event of the fall season, notes the Oregon Traffic Safety Commission, and it's a time that calls for an extra measure of caution on our streets and highways.

Last year nearly 2300 children between the ages of 5 and 14 were injured by traffic: 31 died.

"This frightful toll was recorded in 1968 as a direct result of negligent driving combined with non-uniform and spottily effective counseling by parents, teachers, news media and police agencies," said the Commission's Coordinator, Gil Bellamy.

The state official pointed out that the change from summer's virtually deserted school areas to fall's congested conditions demands a distinctly different set of walking and driving habits. Add to this the fact that many parents and teachers give little or no instruction in proper walking and bike riding rules and regulations; many media members give little or no space or time to emphasizing these laws; and many police agencies regard violations as minor and direct little or
