Car Goes Into Santiam Saturday

MARION FORKS—A Vancouver, Wn. woman and her son escaped serious injuries Saturday night when their car plunged over a 120-foot embankment on the North Santiam Highway and landed right side up in the North Santiam River. The 9 p. m. accident occurred nine miles east of Marion Forks about half a mile west of the Santiam Bridge near the 75-mile post.

Taken to a Salem hospital by Detroit Mobile First Aid unit was Mrs. Donna Lee Athuisius and her 10-year-old son, Jason Lee.

It was snowing in the area at the time and it is believed this may have caused the accident. When the car went down the embankment it struck a tree causing extensive damage to the front end. The boy was released from the hospital Sunday.

Shouldn't you have the best kind of heating system in your castle?

The best is electric, you know. It's comfortable, even heat. It's flameless, clean and soot-free. It won't dirty up walls, drapes or furniture.

Electric heat is an economy. It doesn't cost a king's ransom to install and operate. And when everything in your home, including your heat, is electric, you have only one monthly bill to pay for all the comforts and conveniences that go to make up modern living. (We even have an Equal Payment Plan to help you budget your electric service over the entire year!)

When you add it all up, there is no better way to protect your home investment than with a modern electric heating system. So call your local PP&L office right away. Ask one of our Chill Chaser heating specialists for the straight story on converting your castle to electric heat. There's no obligation, of course.
