Now is the time to view the changing of the seasons as the high country is putting on the colors of autumn and it is worth an unhurried drive or hike.

If you would like to explore the forest by road and enjoy the autumn colors, the Breitenbush River Loop would be a scenic drive. This takes the traveler from Salem turnoff of Interstate 5 on Highway 22 to Detroit, up Breitenbush Forest Road RS46 along the Breitenbush River on the Willamette National Forest to the Mt. Hood National Forest Road S46 along the Clackamas River to State Highway 224 into Estacada, to Woodburn and back to Salem, a distance of 173 miles and about six hours driving time. A variety of scenery and several large power projects are the high points of this drive, passing through two National Forests, farmland and several small communities and there are many camping and picnicking areas along the route.
