

Timber Auction Set For July 7th at Detroit Ranger Station

DETROIT—Sealed bids will be received by Detroit Ranger Station, up to and not later than 10 a. m. July 7th, for an estimated 10,400,000 board feet of Willamette National Forest timber, in the Leone-Hill timber sale. Oral bidding will follow the opening of bids at 10 A. M.

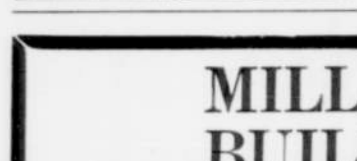

The sale, located approximately 10 miles N. E. of Detroit (up Breitenbush Road) consists of 7,900 MBF of Douglas fir adv. at $73.80 per 1,000 and 2,500 MBF of Western Hemlock and other coniferous species valued at $35.55 per thousand.

Included in the sale is 257 acres of all species logs priced at $87.84 per acre which the bidder is required to purchase.

Area's reforested were two clear-cut units on the Breitenbush, three units in the Homestead Road area and Heater Creek area. The work was done by an eight man crew.

The seedlings used were from the Heel-in-bed at Mehama, and were in part some of 250,000 carried over from last fall.

In addition, Forest Service crews planted some 14 acres of eroding areas along the Kenny Creek Arm of Detroit Reservoir with willows and red alders. Purpose is to provide shade and mulch in the area, Hale said. Tentative plans were to grass seed and fertilize about 50 acres of the eroding soil in the Kenny Creek Arm area, but February floods changed the plans and the funds were diverted to flood control instead on Detroit Reservoir.

Forest Service Has 125 Acres Reforested

DETROIT—Some 125 acres was reforested on the Detroit District, with two year old seedlings, in the U. S. Forest Service annual spring reforestation program, Supervisor Forester, Mahlon Hale, said Monday. Contractor for the project was George Reforestation of Estacada.

Tentative plans were to begin planting March 15th, but due to the heavy snow pack in the mountains, the program did not get underway until June 1st.

All flood debris will be stored on the flats Southwest of Detroit. He said the flats are the only location big enough to hold the debris and that storing it there is strictly an emergency operation. The debris will be bunched preparatory to burning in the fall. Hale said burning will be done only when wind conditions are right to minimize smoke problems to the community and this may be as late as November or December.

Funds originally earmarked for a project in the Kenny Creek area are now being used for the repair of booms and the collecting of flood debris from Detroit Reservoir, Hale said.

The Rev. Ormal Trick of Salem was a guest Wednesday evening, June 15, at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walz.

Detroit Reservoir Being Cleaned

DETROIT—"During the February flood, Forest Service booms across the Breitenbush and Santiam inlets broke during heavy windstorms and released about 10-acres of debris into Detroit Reservoir," Forester Mahlon Hale said this week. He said about a third of the total debris has been collected and that sweeping and collecting of debris on Detroit Reservoir will resume Tuesday of this week and will continue through the summer months when reservoir water levels and wind conditions permit. Sweeping of the reservoir and towing operations will be done with a special designed pond boat and a three man crew. Hale said it is not very likely that the flood debris contained behind the Blowout boom will be collected before late July.

John Davis Gets Teaching Award

IDANHA — Three faculty members of Purdue University Calumet Campus were recognized with $1,000 awards for outstanding undergraduate teaching during the 1971-72 academic year.

The awards were presented at faculty convocation ceremonies to Dr. John E. Davis, associate professor of education, and to two associates.

John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Len Davis of Idanha. The Standard Oil (Indiana) Foundation has made the awards possible with grants to the Purdue Campus in Hammond to recognize full-time teachers who have shown outstanding teaching to undergraduates. Nominees for the awards were selected on the basis of student evaluation of teaching ability. Some 3,000 students rated their instructors on computer cards during the fall and spring semesters.

The final selections were made by a committee of students and faculty members from a computer print-out which tabulated various teaching qualities.

Professor Davis and his two associates all rated extremely high on enthusiasm for the subject, welcoming suggestions and constructive criticism, willingness to help students outside class, encouraging students to participate in class and making the students feel that each class session is important and worthwhile.

Last year both Davis and an instructor received honorable mention recognition for excellent teaching of undergraduates.

Davis has been on the Purdue Calumet faculty since Sept. 1969. His special instructional fields are designed to prepare elementary school teachers in teaching language arts and children's library materials. He has also been active in campus activities, including serving as chairman of the 1971 Open House Committee.

A native of Bend, Ore., Davis is a graduate of OCE and earned his master's and doctoral degrees in education from the University of Oregon. He taught at Central Washington State College and at Bend, public schools over a 10-year period.

An additional quality for which students rated Davis highly was his continuous efforts to bring current trends and developments on his subjects into the classroom.

Davis is a 1952 graduate of Detroit High School.

State Fair Premium Books Available

Premium books for all divisions of the 1972 Oregon State Fair are in the mail and available now, according to Fair Manager Robert L. Stevens.

The Big One '72, August 26 through September 4 in Salem, is themed to feature "A Better Environment Through Forestry." Special classes and awards will be found throughout the Fair with the forestry theme, such as cake and table decorating, cut flower arrangements, garden displays, Christmas trees, crafts, etc.

The premium book, bible of the Fair, lists all prize classifications, competitive divisions, rules governing exhibits and general Fair information. There are separate books for: Agriculture and Horticulture; Art; Crafts and Hobbies; Floriculture; 4-H; FFA; Home Economics; Horse Show; Livestock; Photography; and Pigeons, Rabbits and Caves. Persons desiring the books should contact the State Fair Entry Office, Salem, Or. 97310, or call (503) 378-4668.

State Fair Manager Stevens described the 1972 Oregon State Fair as the most exciting fair that Oregon has ever seen and he expects more than a half million people to attend. "Our theme exhibit, for example, will be the first and only display of its kind in America, covering 3/4 of an acre, and containing more than a half million dollars worth of exhibitry. There'll even be a mountain and it will all be inside one of the world's largest tents," Stevens added, referring to the forestry theme exhibit. "Everyone in Oregon should plan on participating in the Big One '72."

COMBINATION HEALTH PLAN IS BETTER

Coming up in Congress are new ideas for expanding health care—almost 80 separate bills. The most extreme plan would establish a single massive Federal program costing an estimated $70 billion annually. Another of the major proposals would rely primarily on private insurance carriers and cost approximately $8 billion a year.

The first would require a tremendous additional bureaucracy to handle millions of claims, plus a large "police department" to monitor hospital, physician, and laboratory fees and charges.

The other is a three-step proposal which would: 1) mandate a minimum standard of health insurance for each employer to provide for his employees and their dependents; 2) create a pool which would pay the health insurance premiums for those who could not afford such payments; and 3) continue medicare for the aged, blind, and the disabled.

At the other extreme the least expensive plan is one which would cover catastrophic illnesses only. While this plan is easier on the pocketbook, it does not treat the root causes of skyrocketing health-care costs, but prescribes only for one of the factors. The best buy is not always the cheapest nor the most expensive.

It makes good sense to weld the benefits of existing private medical care and private health insurance plans with a government program to assure that everyone will be eligible for adequate medical treatment. Under a total government take-over, the cure for runaway health expenses might be worse than the admitted ills of rising costs and insufficient facilities which now exist.
