It Ain't All Roses

(by George Long)

If anything is capable of making taxpayers and voters see red, it should be current proposals of federal officeholders to form a government-run oil corporation. The vista of bureaucratic abuse and political empire building opened up by such a project overwhelms the imagination of an average intelligent person, especially anyone who has been an enforced customer of that star performer in public business — the post office. If the government ran its oil corporation like it runs the post office, gasoline could easily cost $50 a gallon, and the only place cars would be seen would be in museums.

Some of the things that would happen if the government went into the oil business have been pointed out by the president of the American Petroleum Inst. as follows: 1.—Creation of a government oil corporation would not solve current fuel supply problems because it takes anywhere from three to ten years to properly develop an oil field after it is discovered. 2.—The corporation would drain away skilled employees from private oil companies. 3.—The petroleum industry is already hampered by a shortage of drilling rigs and tubular goods to carry on exploratory drilling and production. If a government corporation entered the field and compete for scarce drilling supplies, this would only mean a further reduction of activity by private enterprise. 4.—The existence of a government oil corporation would discourage investment in private companies which need all the capital they can get for exploration efforts and the construction of more refineries.

The oil industry spokesman also noted that, "one excuse offered for this legislation is that it would increase competition in the petroleum industry. That is nonsense. The legislation would give the Federal Oil and Gas Corp. such overwhelming advantages that to call it a legitimate competitor of private enterprise petroleum companies is to turn the issue into a comedy. . . . The record of the oil industry proves that it can produce the petroleum if anyone can. Private enterprise found oil on Alaska's North Slope, the largest oil field yet discovered in North America. Private enterprise did not block construction of the pipeline which would have brought this North Slope oil to consumers. The political action of excessive environmentalism did that. Finally, taxpayers should take note of the fact that a government oil corporation would open a new siphon into the federal treasury. Untold billions of tax dollars would be needed to support a tax-exempt government oil business. Here is a clear case where the public interest lies on the side of taxpaying, investor-owned industry.

A political authority, who has specialized in running campaigns, has said that it is pure myth to suppose that members of congress have to watch their legislative voting record on tax and spending proposals and make sure that it corresponds to what they told the people back home they were going to do if they were elected. The authority states that, ". . . Legislators, especially at the federal level, have learned that they can vote liberal and talk conservative. . . . People simply don't know, don't care and don't have strong feelings about what happens during the legislature so far as their own legislators is concerned, and, for that matter, so far as what the system itself produces or fails to produce."

Maybe this is why we are in such a fix — facing the likely prospect of accelerated inflation combined with unemployment and recession. If we want things to get better, maybe we should start paying more attention to what our legislators in congress are doing, instead of making their own salaries and our taxes. It is not too late, but it is getting close.

District 29J To Increase Travel Reimbursement

The Mill City School Board met Thursday, Feb. 14. The meeting started at 8:02 p.m. with Martin Hansen, Robert Levon, William Morgan, Fred Krecklow, Wesley Jahn and Edith Ross present. The reading of the minutes of the previous meeting were dispensed with.

First on the agenda was the approval of the speech therapy contract with the Linn-Benton Intermediate Education District. This is a yearly item and needed, to continue with the speech therapy classes.

The board approved putting a new roof on the old Gates High School and on rebuilding the concession stand under the football field. Money for the projects will come from serial levy funds and are planned for summer work projects.

A motion was made and carried by members of the board to reimburse travel for school district personnel be raised from -10c to 12c per mile. This is due to the continued rise in the cost of gasoline and if prices go down, the reimbursement will also.

A discussion followed next on the student insurance coverage for the 1974-75 school year. The school now covers a student on a "secondary policy" costing $3,750.00 per year. Costs were discussed on a primary coverage at $4,500 annually or a total coverage at $4,687.00 per year. Several parents were interested in an increased policy for students, however, the board decided that the insurance coverage is only meant to be a partial coverage and the school district could not afford the cost of total coverage for all students.

A problem involving "hot water" in the home economics room was next. It seems that by the time water reaches the room, it is too cold for use. A plan is being devised to install a hot water heater in the building in hopes of solving the problem. Women volleyball players were given the OK to use the Mill City Elementary Gymnasium for two nights per week due to their increase in participants. They said they will do without heating the building.

The board accepted a bid from Scheiky Equipment Co. of Portland for the no. one bus being sold. The company agreed to pay $750 now and $1,000 when the bus is picked up in the fall. This makes a total of $1,750 for the bus.

School District 29J will receive $188,441 from the Linn-Benton IED levy, providing their budget passes. Additional members of the "Right to Read" program are Dale Kirsch, Barbara Penrose, and Sherry Jeter. Salaries for classified school employees and principals have been accepted by both parties involved. They will receive a 10% salary increase plus fringe benefits.

Also agreed upon by the board was a $10.00 per month increase on district rented houses effective July 1, 1974. Last on the agenda was an offer from Linn-Benton County Health Nurse, Mrs. Schaeffer to conduct free classes for grades 7-12 in family planning, which includes sex education. A written survey will be conducted in the near future by the school district through the parents to determine if they are to have their children attend these classes. Participation would be voluntary and not required. This information has already been presented in the junior and senior high schools in Albany and the high schools in Scio and Lebanon.

The next school board meeting will be held Thursday, March 14, 8:00 p.m. at the Santiam High School.

Second, third and fourth place national winners receive scholarships increased to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

Property Tax Filings Due For Exemptions

Disabled war veterans and veterans' widows must apply for their annual Oregon property tax exemptions by April 1, the Dept. of Veterans Affairs said this week. Applications should be filed with the county assessor.

H. C. Saalfeld, VA director, said the exemption amounts to $7,500 of the true cash value of property. Entitled are war veterans 40% or more disabled, war veterans.

Saalfeld said this is not an automatic exemption. Even though an exemption was granted last year, the property owner must file a new application to be considered for the exemption this year.

If the taxpayer still has property tax to pay on his residence after the veteran's exemption, and has an income of less than $15,000 a year, he is eligible for a refund under the new homeowners and renters property tax refund program passed by the 1973 legislature.

Large Crowd Attends City Council Meet.

About 60 residents appeared unexpectedly at the city council meeting Wednesday, Feb. 13 seeking information on the proposed sewer system.

Clark & Groff Engineers, Inc., Salem, conducted a study for the system and presented it to the council about three months ago.

As the sewer system was not scheduled to be on the agenda, the council postponed all other business after authorizing payment of the bills until the next regular council meeting.

Wayne Taylor, representative of Clark & Groff Engineers, Inc. was unprepared to provide specific answers for questions put to him by local residents.

Many of those present asked what their personal hookup costs and users fees would be under the proposed $2.8 million system. Questioning lasted for about 2½ hours.

Councilman Howell stated that Mayor Bate was in the process of selecting a citizens committee to study the proposed sewer system and bring back recommendations to the council which would enable them to act on this issue much faster. It was also stated that the city council has hopes of putting it on the November ballot for a vote.

City Of Detroit To Pursue Claim

DETROIT — The City of Detroit, which spent more money determining how much money had been taken in city funds allegedly by a former city recorder, Judy VanFleet, is going to fight to get back both its auditing costs and embezzled funds from the company which bonded the former convicted recorder.

At Tuesday night's meeting of last week, the city council authorized City Attorney Ralph Wyckoff to pursue a claim against the bonding company for over $2,200 it cost the city to determine how much they lost in city funds.

Mrs. VanFleet resigned in June, 1973, and was subsequently convicted of a theft charge. The bonding company has agreed to pay back the $2,173 Mrs. VanFleet allegedly took but refused to pay city auditing expenses.
