LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TO THE EDITOR:
I would like to commend Don Moffatt on his splendid article (Up & Down the Avenue) for his views and comments on TV programming.

I, and I'm not alone by far, have been discussed with the trash being presented to viewers via the TV Boob Tube.

The gory murder mysteries, sex scenes, etc. are enough to make one throw up. And, in my opinion, some of the commercials also need cleaning up, especially the ones advertising women's hygiene products.

Apparently, the broadcasting companies will do anything for the saw-buck. It does not matter to them that it is distasteful to the public. And while on the subject of TV programming, why don't the broadcasting companies save the trash for the late viewers, if they have to present it, which, in my opinion, is not necessary. The way it is now, if you want to view a good clean wholesome show, you have to stay up until 11:30 p.m. or 1:30 a.m. to do so. And, at times, even at that late hour, the show may not be worth losing sleep over.

Another long gripe of mine is the screaming and screaming of contestants on the day shows, such as "Let's Make A Deal." It has long been my contention these screaming damsels are putting on an act, because they know they are on TV. No one, least of all senior citizens, appreciate the shrill shrieks of these fair damsels.

In recent weeks there has been a number of letters to the Oregon Statesman's Safety Valve deploring the type of shows on TV. One lady suggests that viewers write the FCC for public hearings. Address: 1919 M St. N. W., Washington, D.C.

The airways belong to the people and the effects of sex-violence and gory murder mysteries on TV programming should be aired publically, openly and widely.

Many citizens in areas are not only out of the price of their TV, but also TV cable.

Therefore, entertainment comes pretty high, so why not get the best for your money. In a crusade to "clean up" the TV programming, it would help a lot if every newspaper in the state would lend their support.

Trend Shows People Moving To Rural Life

Population experts are noting a trend of people moving from the cities into rural areas. This change from the previous trend of country-to-city migration is predicted to accelerate.

Calvin L. Beale, head of the population studies group of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, said ". . . I'm thoroughly convinced that the major reason (for this) has been the tremendous change in values about what people think is important, every survey taken in the last ten years has shown increasing dissatisfaction on the part of the people living in big cities."
