A Corvallis man died in the Pamela Lake area Thursday night of last week of an apparent drug overdose, Linn County sheriff's office said. Dead is Robert L. Tetrick, 38, Corvallis. Tetrick was discovered by a U. S. Forest Service employee.

The Hager twins of the television Hee Haw show, who were enroute to Eastern Oregon, were callers at the Cedars Friday. A few local residents reportedly got their autographs.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Martin of Boise, Idaho, arrived here for the holidays and for a two week vacation at their summer home on Clester Road.

According to a report, about 850 feet of copper wire valued at $4,900 was taken over the weekend from a warehouse located two miles west of Detroit, Marion County sheriff deputies learned Monday from Brandon Electrical Constr. Co., Gresham, owner of the wire.

Mrs. Frank (Maryellen) Hancock, left by bus Tuesday for Gazelle, Calif., to be with her mother, Mrs. Ida Dougherty, who suffered a stroke. Mrs. Dougherty is 77 years young. She is reported to be getting along alright.

An error was made in last week's issue in quoting the advertised rate per thousand in the Monument Timber Sale. The advertised rate for 1,400 MBF of Douglas Fir was $8.02, not $802 per thousand. Champion International, the successful bidder, bid $401 per thousand for the estimated board feet, $392.98 above the advertised rate of $8.02.

Mrs. Rubin (Margaret) Krieger of Idanha, who underwent eye surgery for the removal of a cataract from her right eye last week at Salem Memorial Hospital, is to be transferred to Salem Convalescent Center, 875 Oak S. E. as of Wednesday of this week. In a note to this reporter, she said she will remain at the center until follow-up surgery on both eyes can be arranged at Good Samaritan Hospital, Portland. She did not know how long she will have to remain at the center.

Every parade must have clowns as Bill Beyer and Kevin Long "ham it up" at the parade grounds.

Adding to the amusement of onlookers before and during the parade were these three unidentifiable gorillas.

CampFire Girls Learn About Fire Prevention

Detroit Ranger District presented a Fire Prevention Program to the Camp Fire Girls of the Mill City area. There were 13 girls aging six to twelve years old. While Glen Reinke, head of fire prevention, was discussing the correct procedures on building and drawing campfires; Smokey the bear came out of the woods to visit the group. The program was held at Fishermen's Bend Campground near Mill City on June 18. After the session the girls went on a nature hike presented by Linda Silvis, assistant resource clerk at the Ranger Station. The district feels that the Camp Fire Girls benefitted from the session as well as the forest service.

Last month on June 14, Smokey received a message from two campers at Leone Lake. The Detroit Ranger District felt that this note should be read by all Oregon recreationists. Here is what the campers had to say:

"Dear Smokey: We went up to Lake Leone today, and it was beautiful! There was no snow and the trail was clear (relatively). However, upon reaching the "camping areas" we found them unthinkingly strewn with trash, old cans, aluminum foil, cigarette butts, and all kinds of undesirable paraphernalia. We filled our little day pack up and cleared most of it up for you, because we love the mountains and fresh air and like to get away from all the garbage and trash of the "civilized" world. Could you please tell people to "Pack it in" and "Pack it out!"

too? /S/ Randy and Gail"

The district has found a lot of this happening all over — not just in a few areas. We want to thank Randy and Gail for their concerned interest in the national forest's beauty and cleanliness. The forest service understands that it can only take a few people to make the forest undesirable for everyone, so we are asking all recreationists to remember our little hoot owl Woodsey when he says: Give a Hoot, Don't Pollute!

Vacationers Enjoy Upper Canyon Area

DETROIT — The Upper North Santiam Canyon hosted hundreds of vacationers and fishermen over the long Fourth of July holiday.

A spokesman at Detroit Ranger Station said all 13 of the districts U. S. Forest Service campgrounds were filled to capacity by Thursday night. Detroit State Park was also filled to capacity and it was noted that most wide spots where a trailer could be parked were made use of.

Gray skies cleared by Friday and Saturday and Sunday temperatures ranged in the high 80's.

An electrical storm with spectacular lightning display moved into the Breitenbush and Marion Forks area Saturday night. Forest service officials said a small fire was reported in the Middle Mountain area located in the Marion Forks area. Val Andermatt, fire control officer, Detroit Ranger Station, said another fire was reported near Monument Peak just outside of the boundary, in Sundays electrical storm.

According to a report, lightning was blamed as the cause of 82 of the 94 fires reported over the July 4 holiday weekend on state and private lands, the state forestry department said Monday.

The agency said 12 fires were attributed to man-caused ignitions, and that the fires altogether burned a total of 40 acres.

Most of the fires were in areas northwest of John Day, east of Klamath Falls and in northern Douglas County. Largest fire was a blaze of some 16 acres in grass and juniper north of John Day. There have been 345 fires which burned 849 acres so far this season, according to the department.
