For your child's safety

Electricity is the lifeblood of many modern household appliances which can make a mother's job a little bit easier.

But, according to Dr. Albert H. Domm, child safety specialist and former medical director of the Prudential Insurance Co., that same electric current can cause serious injury or even death for a curious toddler if precaution is not taken.

Dr. Albert H. Domm

He urges all parents to inspect their homes for electrical danger spots and take prompt corrective action if any exist.

Dr. Domm suggests these safeguards: (1) Keep all electric outlets covered when not in use. Curious children can stick conductive objects into uncovered sockets. (2) Be sure you have no worn extension cords. (3) Place all electrical machinery and appliances out of the reach of toddlers. (4) Light switches, electrical appliances, or outlets should not be within reach of the bathtub.

"The bathtub requires special attention from parents since many electrical accidents take place there," he said. "Wet hands and feet increase the possibility of shock."

If such a mishap occurs, shut the current off immediately and remove the victim from the contact using a stick or gloves, but not bare-handed. Call an ambulance or doctor and administer artificial respiration until help arrives.

"YOUR LAND AND MY LAND"

Young Ebenezer Scrooge

The ghost stopped at a certain warehouse and asked Scrooge if he recognized it. "Recognize it, I was apprenticed here!"

They went in. "Why it's old Fezziwig, Bless his heart. It's old Fezziwig alive again." Fezziwig laid down his pen and looked up at the clock. He rubbed his hands, adjusted his capacious waistcoat and laughed all over himself. He called out in a jovial voice: "Yo ho there! Ebenezer! Dick! No more work tonight, Christmas Eve! Let's clear away and have lots of room here. Hili Ho Dick! Chirrup Ebenezer."

Clear away! There was nothing they wouldn't have cleared away. Every movable thing was packed off. The floor was swept, the lamps were trimmed, fuel was heaped upon the fire and the warehouse was as warm and bright a ballroom as you would desire to see upon a winter's night.

In came a fiddler and tuned like fifty stomach-aches. In came Mrs. Fezziwig, one vast smile. In came the three Miss Fezziwigs beaming and loveable. In came the six young fellows whose hearts they broke. In came all the young men and women employed in the business.

Away they all went, twenty couples at once; hands half-way round and back again; top couple always turning up in the wrong place; new top couples starting off again; all top couples to the foot.

There were more dances, there were cakes and a great cold roast and mince pies. Then the fiddler struck up, "Sir Roger de Coverly." Old Fezziwig stood out to dance with Mrs. Fezziwig. When they had gone through "Advance and Retire" both hand to your partner, "Bow and Courtesey," "Corkscrew," "Thread the Needle" and back again, they were all breathless.

As the clock struck eleven, Mr. and Mrs. Fezziwig took their stations on either side of the door, shaking hands with every person, wishing him or her a "Merry Christmas." When everyone was gone but the two apprentices they did the same to them and as the cheery voices died away, the lads were left to their beds which were under a counter in the back shop.

It's a matter of life and breath! Give more to Christmas Seals

Poems By Detroit School Students

In the spirit of Christmas, poems were written by the students of Mrs. Joyce Reinke at Detroit Elementary School. The following poems were written by two of her students.

Christmas is falling snow,
 Having fun, giving gifts,
 Looking at snow,
 Decorating the tree,
 Decorating the house,
 Laughing for fun,
 Watching T.V.
 Making gifts,
 Talking to someone,
 Being nice to someone,
 Going on a sleigh ride.
 Making happy cards,
 Helping someone,
 Having a good day,
 Having a party with each other,
 Having Joy.
 Coming to someone's house,

Christmas is snow ball fighting.
 Christmas is pretty snow flakes falling
 Christmas is stockings hanging.
 Christmas is snowman standing.
 Christmas is snow.

Forest Service Map Sales Begin Jan. 1

The forest service will begin a new map sales program in Oregon and Washington on Jan. 1, 1976. Recreation maps of 19 national forests in the two states and certain topographic maps will cost 50¢ each after that date.

The forest service will put money received from the sale of maps into a fund earmarked for reprinting and updating maps and the production of new maps. Previously, maps have been distributed in small quantities at no charge, with money to print these maps coming from appropriated funds. Demand for high quality maps has increased steadily over the years along with cost of producing them, and it has become difficult to satisfy the demand.

Regional Forester T. A. Schlapfer said, "For years, the forest service has provided free maps to the public. We have always had authority to charge for them but until now have not had authority to use money collected to print more maps. With the new sales program, we will be able to recover printing costs and apply the money directly to the job of keeping our maps updated and of the quality the public has come to expect."

Maps for sale under the new system will include recreation maps of the 19 National Forests in Oregon and Washington; the following Wilderness maps with contour lines—Eagle Cap, Glacier Peak, Goat Rocks, Kalmlopolis, Mt. Hood, Mt. Jefferson, Mt. Washington, and Three Sisters; and one special topographic map—Mt. St. Helens-Spirit Lake.
