Lines on the Deth of a Kow.

The poor old kow is ded:
Tha nookt her in the head,
A barl of blud she bled.
Poor old thing.

12 kwarts or milck she giv,
As trew as Eye dew liv,
But now er 12-kwart bag
Ain't wuth a lalygag.
Poor old thing.

She'd kick U in 2 fits
Ef yew dared to pinch her tits,
And she'd hook U inter bits
'Bout as large as popper grains.

But the poor old kritter's gone!
Etarnitee has dawned
Inter her hed.
She's gone to that bright land,
With the sperits of kows she stands,
She's ded! She's ded!

Carriages With Noiseless Tires.

Many of the fashionable carriages that go by on the favorite drives do so with a quietude that causes people to turn and wonder what is the matter. The only noise heard is the clatter of the horses' hoofs, and the wheels seem like pieces of well-oiled machinery. The explanation is the noiseless rubber tire which is now being so extensively used on the finest carriages.

The Poor Man's Friend.

The New Era, a democratic paper has the following to say of Hon. Binger Herman:

The settlers of Warner Valley, in Oregon, and every other portion of that monopoly-ridden state, should personally or by letter thank the Hon. Binger Herman for the manner in which he has stood by them, when he could have lined his pockets with gold had he been inclined to favor the other side. Herman is among the few honest men in public life who cannot be swerved from his duty by the offers of lands, gold or honors. It is indeeda pleasant fact to contemplate that there are such men holding responsible positions, where they can be of some benefit to the masses; it is also a sad fact to contemplate that such men rarely succeed in securing a second term. The masses stand by and see their friends slashed right and left by monopolies, rings, corporations, cliques and factions, who generally succeed in electing a poor devil as a successor who has no character to lose, and consequently cares for nothing but the interests of his masters and does their bidding without let or hindrance. The citizens of Oregon should not leave a stone unturned that will assist in the return of Herman to congress.

Ben Butler's Rage.

"I was up at a state fair at Manchester, N. H.," said ex-Governor Warmoth of Louisiana, the other day, "away back in 1873," writes a correspondent of the Washington Post. "It was the usual sort of a New England fair—an agricultural horse-trot with brass band and political speeches. Ben Butler was up for the speech. The audience was on the grand stand, one side the race-track, and Ben Butler and the rest of us big guns in the judges' stand on the other side.

" 'Fellow-citizens of my native state,' began the bold Ben, 'I shall address you to-day on the subject of federal, state and municipal taxation.'

"Butler sailed along and had got well warmed up when a corn-fed farmer drove along the track with twenty yoke of oxen and a cart piled up with corn, pumpkins and other farm products and a couple of buxom country girls on top. He was proud of that turnout and took his time getting by the grand stand. Of course, Butler had to stop till it got out of the way. Then he began again and warmed up once more. By that time another farmer had got jealous of the impression the first one had made, and he came gee-hawing down the track with thirty yoke of cattle and a still bigger cart loaded away up with big squashes and pumpkins and four slashing-looking red-cheeked girls on his load, each one holding a red ear of corn in her hand. Well, that outfit made a big sensation on the grand stand and attracted more attention than Jim Robinson driving a twenty-horse circus chariot would. Of course, Butler had to stop again. He was getting mad.

" 'Can't this thing be stopped?' he asked, 'I don't want to be headed off by every Jake in New Hampshire who wants to make a holy show of himself.'

"Some one was sent off up the track to stop further interruptions, and Butler got along as far as fifthly, and was getting red in the face, when what should come along the track but another caravan. This one had nearly forty yoke of oxen, every one a seven-footer, as sleek as bulls and as fat as butter. The cart was full of apple butter, schoolmarms, and the grand stand knew them all and went wild with delight. To say that Butler was mad would be useless. He got his eyes almost wide open.

" 'If another one of those infernal cattle shows comes along,' said he, I'll leave the platform. I will be switched if I'm going to be broken in upon every ten minutes.'

"This time a messenger was sent up the track, who headed off all the rest of the procession, and Butler went along swimmingly for a quarter of an hour longer, when a big brass band struck up back of the grand stand. Lord, what a noise it made! But Butler wasn't going to be 'phased' by a big brass band, even if two-thirds of the crowd were craning their necks for a sight of the musicians. Just then the fire-bells over in Manchester set up clang-whanging, and every engine in the city paraded out in the fair grounds. Down the track they tore at full speed, one after another, fires up, smoke rolling out of the stacks, bells clanging, and horses laying their bellies almost on the ground, while every boy in Manchester chased along behind, yelling like demons, and those on the grand stand tumbling over each other to see where the fire was.

"That was the end of it. Butler tore up his notes and danced all over the platform, blue with rage, and swearing like a trooper, while I climbed down behind the stand where I could laugh."

Powerful interrupted voltaic currents have recently been used in England to arrest the growth of cancer.

A pinch of light tobacco,
A little strip of paper;
Now roll it with great care—so!
Yes, that's the proper caper.
A little waxen taper,
A youth of years fifteen;
An invalid for aye—per—
Haps a grave that's green.

Money goes, no one knows;
Where it goeth, no one showeth;
Here and there, everywhere;
Run, run;
Dun, dun;
Spend, spend;
Lend, lend;
Send, send.
Flush to-day, short to morrow;
Notes to pay, borrow, borrow;
How it goes, no one knows;
Where it goeth, no one showeth.

To the Physicians of Lake County.

CENSUS OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 1.

To the Medical Profession:

The various medical associations and the medical profession will be glad to learn that Dr. John S. Billings, Surgeon U. S. A., has consented to take charge of the report on the mortality and vital statistics of the United States as returned the eleventh census.

As the United States has no system of registration of vital statistics, such as is relied upon by other civilized nations for the purpose of ascertaining the actual movement of population, our census affords the only opportunity of obtaining near an approximate estimate of the birth and death rates of much the larger part of the country, which is entirely unprovided with any satisfactory system of state and municipal registration.

In view of this, the census office, during the month of May this year, will issue to the medical profession throughout the country "Physician's Registers" for the purpose of obtaining more accurate returns of deaths than it is possible for the enumerators to make. It is earnestly hoped that physicians in every part of the country will co-operate with the census office in this important work. The record should be kept from June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890. Nearly 26,000 of these registration books were filled up and returned to the office in 1880, and nearly all of them used for statistical purposes. It is hoped that double this number will be obtained for the eleventh census.

Physicians not receiving registers can obtain them by sending their names and addresses to the census office, and, with the register, an official envelope which requires no stamp will be provided for their return to Washington.

If all medical and surgical practitioners throughout the country will lend their aid, the mortality and vital statistics of the eleventh census will be more comprehensive and complete than they have ever been. Every physician should take a personal pride in having this report as full and accurate as it is possible to make it.

It is hereby promised that all information obtained through this source shall be held confidential.

ROBERT S. PORTER,
Superintendent of Census.

Hortense Leduc, a girl well known in musical and social circles in Montreal, inherited a fortune stated at over four million dollars by the death of a French gentleman of Cannes, who seems to have loved her mother.

Cincinnatti's veteran "newsboy" Al. Shattler, has retired from business with the comfortable surplus of $60,000, and will buy and a cattle ranch in Colorado and settle down there. He is thirty-nine years old and out of health.

Investigation is said to develop the fact that a strip of territory two miles wide on the eastern boundary of Humbolt county, Nev., which rightfully belongs to that county, is claimed by Lander from the railroad inclusive north to the Elko line, and by Elko county from that point north to the Oregon line.

H. D. White, who belonged to Odd Fellows' lodge 111 of Woodland, was killed by gas from a fire which he and a companion had built in a tent on Stein's mountain, Or., May 15th, during a snowstorm. White's companion, Dean Horton, was insensible when they were discovered, remained in that condition for several days.

Several hundred song birds, lately received from Germany, comprising nightingales, skylarks, thrushes, starlings, gold, green and bull finches, linnets, etc., which have been on exhibition for several days in large cages at the exposition building, where they have been recuperating and regaining the use of their wings, were turned loose at Portland.

A distinguished lawyer of Brooklyn said: "Not long ago I was talking with Mr. Blaine about Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, whom we both very greatly admire for his wonderful talents. I made the remark that it was my belief that Colonel Ingersoll would ultimately renounce his agnosticism. Mr. Blaine said; 'I think so, too, and I shouldn't be surprised to see him some day in the pulpit.' "

There is one office for which there are as yet no applicants. That is the registership of the land office at Stockton, Cal. The office is not a profitable one, because the public lands in that district has been for the most part sold. This particular place is an exception to the general rule, for the offices are few and far between where there are not applicants ranging in number from a dozen up to thirty or forty.

Consul Plumacher, writing from Maracaibo, Venezuela, to a friend says: "We have had no rain for fifteen months, with the exception of two showers. I never have seen such fearful weather. The cost of living, in consequence, has greatly increased, in many cases to four times the original price. Water is so scarce that what my family need for drinking purposes costs us 80 cents a day, besides an additional 30 cents for hauling it. There is great suffering among the poorer classes, who are compelled to drink the brackish water of the lake. The yellow fever is extending into the mountains. In Trujillo, in the Andes, it is decimating the population. In Betejuca, which is 1,900 feet above Maracaibo, and which was always a place of refuge with our people during epidemics, there are now eighty cases of fever out of a population 800."

There are now about five hundred descendants of the nine mutineers who took native wives from Tahiti and for many years lived securely, unknown to the world, in their little island home at Pitcairn.

A Quebec paper says that the volume of emigration from that province to the United States this year will reach over one hundred thousand, and it wants to know if something can't be done to prevent it.

The first paper-mill in America was built at Roxoborough, near Philadelphia, in 1690, and the first paper-maker was William Ritenhouse. Steps are being taken toward the celebration of this bi-centennial.

Another band of buffalo which has not been generally known to have been in existance has been discovered in the bad lands around the Bull mountains, about halfway between the Yellowstone and Missouri rivers, in Dawson county, Montana.

Just the thing: Foreman—Slug seven came in drunk this afternoon and pied your article on the "Effects of Intemperance." Editor—Completely? Foreman—All but the head. Editor—Well, just run the pi under the head. I think that will illustrate the point.

Forest-grabbing is now practiced on an immense scale. Preston Ashbridge, agent of a British syndicate, has just purchased 400,000,000 feet of pine, poplar and cherry in West Virginia, and 500,000,000 of yellow pine in Florida, and is after all he can get.

Chris Buckley, the blind politician of San Francisco, has been questioned about the new states and he thinks the chances for Washington, Montana, and one of the Dakotas to elect democratic state governments and send democrats to the United States senate are very good.

Benjamin Hulick had to get a detective to help him to find what became of a peach and apple orchard he set out lately near Farmingdale, N. J. Every tree had been transplanted to a farm some miles away. It is getting dangerous to leave even an orchard out doors some places.

Evidence is being taken at Los Angeles in a suit to quiet title to certain lands containing about 45,000 acres in San Bernardino county, which the Mission Indians claim as a part of the Potrero Mission reservation. Of the five plaintiffs, who are Indians, three are over one hundred years of age.

The great naval powers launched sixty ships of war last year. Of these, fifteen were English, nine French, six German and six American. The rest were divided amongst the other powers. It looks as if the world is not yet ready to be hammered into a prunning hook, nor the man-of-war to be turned into fishing smacks.

Secretary Noble has approved the plan of operation for continuing the irrigation survey of arid lands proposed by Major J. W. Powell, director of the geographical survey, which was begun in 1888 under the authority of congress. The area to be surveyed in California will comprise the unmapped portions of the drainage basins of the Yuba, American, Cosumnes, Mokelumne, Stanislaus, Truckee, and Carson rivers. About 300 square miles in Nevada and about 4,000 square miles of the basins of the Truckee and Carson rivers are also included. Instructions to parties in the field will be issued in a few days.
