Weary, Bleary Dude.

"Will you think of me often, my darling?" she said.
But the dude struck her dumb with a shake of his head.
"I'd really be glad to," he drawled with a wink,
"But most of the time I'm too tired."

The Grave Gets Tired Yawning.

Seemingly, for certain wretched invalids who toddle feeble along, though always looking as if they were going to die, but omitting to do it. They dry up, wither, dwindle away finally, but in the meantime never having robust health, know nothing of the physical enjoyment, the zest of existance to which they cling with such remarkable tenacity. They are always to be found trying to mend by tinkering at themselves with some trashy remedy, tonic or "pick me up" to give a fillip to digestion, or "help the liver." If such misguided folks would resort and adhere to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters it would be well with them. This superb invigorant supplies the stamina that the feeble require, by permanently reinforcing digestion and assimilation. It overcomes nervousness, insomnia, malaria, kidney complaints, biliousness, constipation, rheumatism and neuralgia.

Live Stock Notes.

N. W. Live Stock Journal.

The stockmen who have been and are offering rewards for the capture of cattle and horse thieves, have paid W. S. Lykins $3,000 for his work in detecting and punishing the Nebraska rustlers. The Journal is delighted to make this announcement for two reasons—it encourages men to ferret out the rogues and it demonstrates to the thieves that the stockmen mean business.

With thirty three per cent of the cattle receipts at the market centres cows and fifteen to twenty per cent yearlings and two-year-olds, to say nothing of the calves one can but think that matured beef cattle are going to be scarce in the near future. Examine the market reports and talk with your neighbors about the character of their shipments and see if the above is not subject to verification.

The strangest thing in the commercial world is the constant shipment of unripe cattle to market when corn is so cheap that farmers can afford to burn it instead of coal. Thirteen hundred to fourteen hundred pound steers, plump, round and thrifty, but not fat, are selling on the markets at $3 to 3.50. The same grade of cattle, with two hundred pounds more flesh put on, are bringing $5.25 to $6. There is no sense in this slaughter. It is rank treason to common sense and ought to break every one who thus operates. And the chances are that it will. There is a bushel of money in buying this class of cattle on the markets and returning them to the feed lots for ripening.

President of Brazil.

Deodoro de Fonseca the provisional president of Brazil, was born in 1826, and is, therefore, 63 years of age. He fought in the war with Paraguay, and was wounded at the battle of Itorroro. After the war he organized a military club at Rio de Janeiro, and the secret of his strength is his carefully fostered popularity in the army. At one time the imperial authorities found it expedient to send him to a distant province for a time.

He, as it appears, was the chief spirit in the military movement which brought the imperial regime to an end. Newspapers dated just previous to the revolution give no indication that a momentous change of administration was impending. In short, editors then did not know that a well devised military usurpation was about to take place. Happily, no bloodshed accompanied the revolution, which seems to have been at all points successful. In a message sent by him to Dom Pedro on November 16, he said:

"The democratic sentiments of the nation, combined with the resentment at the systematic repressive measure of the government against the army and navy, and the spoliation of their rights, have brought about a revolution. In the face of this situation the presence of the imperial family in the country is impossible. Yielding, therefore, to the exigencies of the national voice, the provisional government is compelled to request you to leave Brazilian territory with your family within twenty-four hours. The country expects you will know how to imitate the example set by the first emperor of Brazil on April 7, 1831."

General Fonseca is now supreme, and every friend of Brazil hopes that he will prove to be another Washington, the father of a prosperous republic.

The Gentlemanly Burglar.

A gentlemanly burglar went to the National theatre the other night. The burglar is taking a vacation just at present. He was very much interested in the patent drop-a-dime-in-the-slot-and-get-a-pair-of-opera-glasses box. He looked it over and over and anon chuckled within:

"Well, this is fine. Now let us see."

He dropped a dime in at the top, turned the screw and the lid fell. The opera glasses came out.

"In New York they had printed on the lining a statement that the opening of the box was communicated to the ticket-office outside by some electrical device. But it was a fake, and they had to chain the glasses as these are chained. Now let us see."

He took a pair of nippers from his pocket and cut out the chain. The glasses were placed in his overcoat.

"Hum! ha!"

He deftly took a hairpin from the lady in front, gave it a few bends and went to work. In just forty seconds he had, got into the cash till and recovered his dime, with three others. He then pushed it back in place. The lid still remained open. He gently pushed it to.

"You have to use a special key to lock it up. Now see."

He gave the hair-pin another twist, probed into the slot at the top, hooked something and gave a pull. The lid was closed, the opera-glasses gone and the till tapped. He straightened the hairpin, gave it the proper turn, and inserted it among the lady's tresses.

"Some time within a month that box will be opened," said he, as he walked out, "and a disappointed glass-hunter will have a row with the doorkeeper, or whoever has it in charge. The company is getting up some electrical devices to indicate when one of their opera glasses goes out doors. It will work by magnetic attraction at the door. But the first man they haul up will have a bunch of keys that sets the machine to jumping and the first lady will have steel corset ribs. Oh, it is a great scheme."

Colonel Elliot F. Shepard is endeavoring to revive interest in the Grant monument. He has contributed $10,000 to the fund. This is a heroic effort, but it is a question if it succeeds. New York has the world's fair project on hand now.

Of Interest to Woman.

Miss Mary E. Braddon will soon issue her fifty-seventh novel.

A movement is on foot to erect a statue to Miss Susan B. Anthony.

The moral of Mona Caird's book is against society marriages without love.

Mrs. Custer, author of "Boots and Saddles," spent the summer under a tent in Pennsylvania.

The wittiest woman writer in France to-day is said to be the lady who masquerades under the nom de plume of "Gyp."

Lady Idine Nevill, the bride of the late Lady Brassey's son, is an enthusiastic cricketer and selected the cricket costumes for her bridesmaids.

"Dollie" Johnson, of Louisville, has reported for duty at the White house. Who's "Dollie" Johnson? She's Mrs. Laura Johnson, first-class cook, late in the employ of Colonel John Mason Brown, and accepted by Mrs. Harrison on the recommendation of Theodore Roosevelt.

Last summer quite an unusual number of English ladies devoted themselves to the sport of salmon fishing. Lady Lovelace and Lady Washington have both been very successful in the river Balgy, which flows through Lord Lovelace's stalking grounds. Lady Caroline Gordon Lennox also has succeeded in landing some very fine salmon from the Spey in the fisheries belonging to her father, the Duke of Richmond.

Rosa Bonheur is robust and compactly built, but she is quite short. She carries her head proudly—almost defiantly. Her cheeks are still pink, and her face is full of health, although her hair is gray. At home and in her studio she continues to wear the masculine dress, but when she visits Paris she dons female attire. She never assumes petticoats without deprecating the custom, and complaining of their interfering with the freedom of the limbs, and thereby impeding the power of locomotion.

Business and Industrial.

Omaha street-car men have been working fifteen hours and getting $2.50 and $3. The hours have been changed to ten and twelve and the pay to $2.

France is buying vast quantities of American cider this year. Strangely enough, American importations of French champagne are increasing also.

Over sixty-five thousand elephants are killed every year in Africa. The ivory obtained from their tusks brings in the raw state something like $4,000,000.

Taverns may be traced to the thirteenth century. According to Spelman, in the reign of King Edward III, only three taverns were licensed in England in 1752.

London was first lighted in 1414 with private lanterns. In 1736 the lanterns were increased to 1,000,000 in number. In 1744 the first lighting act was passed. In 1820 gas was generally substituted for oil.

N. G. Robinson, a citizen of Michigan, who was arrested in Portland some weeks since for scattering advertisements about the streets and on examination in the police court discharged, has begun suit in the United States circuit court against the city for $4,000 damages on account of injury to his character by being kept in jail one day. Mrs. Mary E. Lynch has also brought suit against the city to recover $10,160 damages on account of her son being imprisoned in the city jail for six days, where she claims he was brutally treated and his health injured. The boy was arrested for larceny and a petition for a writ of habeas corpus was denied by Judge Shattuck.

Representative Cannon said the other day that in his fourteen years of service in congress he had seen more than a thousand men come and go. Three or four of these have gone over to the senate, a few have died; the large majority would answer to the roll of ex-congressmen, every one of them representing a disappointed ambition.

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use.

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 160 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was often troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.
