LAKEVIEW, OREGON, SEPT. 6, 1900

McKinley's Policy Approved.

The nation may well feel proud of President McKinley's action in the recent appalling crisis that threatened serious complications in China. There is no yell of "imperialism" from the yellow press anent the policy of the Administration in the Chinese situation, and the President's announcement that the American Government will oppose to the last the partition of China—until every resource of diplomacy is exhausted—has commanded not only the admiration of the other nations, but that of our own people at home. This American policy differs radically from that pursued by the European governments. The Washington Post says:

"Our diplomatic efforts to avert an appalling tragedy, unparalleled in the world's history, have been conducted with tactful skill, patient forbearance and lofty methods that have challenged the admiration of Christendom. Dealing directly and frankly with the Chinese authorities, through Minister Wu and our consuls in the Orient; keeping cool and clear heads under the most trying circumstances; unmoved by the outcries of the hysterical press, President McKinley and Secretary Hay have made a record in this unhappy affair of which the nation may well feel proud. The wisdom of each succeeding step taken by the State Department has been speedily established. All Europe has had its first news from Washington, from time to time, of development in the important diplomatic negotiations preliminary to the rescue.

"Senator Thurston, who is in Washington, said: 'I am filled with admiration, as every American must be, with the attitude of the Administration in the handling of this momentous question. It has been splendid. We have literally set the pace for the powers. The President's foreign policy has been admirable. True to our original purpose, we have pushed on to Peking and rescued our Minister, and have been perfectly fair to the Chinese, without a thought of entering into a war of conquest or of revenge.'"

"The Inland Empire."

"The Inland Empire" is a new and handsome 32 page publication just established at Walla Walla, Washington, A. H. Harris, manager. Its initial number, received at this office, is emblazoned with a beautiful frontispiece, and is filled with highly interesting matter. "The Inland Empire" encroaches on no journalistic enterprise in the Northwest; its field is particularly its own—the development of Northwest resources—assisting new enterprises and the encouragement of immigration. It would appear to have a large field to work in—Washington, Oregon and Idaho. Its subscription price is popular—one dollar per year, and the publication should find a hearty welcome in every home in the three great states of the Northwest. "The Examiner" and "The Inland Empire" will be clubbed to any subscriber at three dollars per year, the two papers.

Colonel Bryan has received another "notification." The people of the United States will give him final notification on or about November 6, 1900, to the effect that he can close up his political business, go home to Lincoln and live quietly ever afterward.

Under Cleveland and free trade we were borrowing money and going deeply into debt. Under McKinley and Protection we are loaning money to England, and she is going deeper into debt, while we are paying off our debt.

Li Hung Chang is a prisoner on board a ship and will be held until the opening of negotiations between the Allied Powers and China. When Li Hung is released he should be beheaded and told to go and sin no more.
