OREGON'S TRADE.
 During the year just passed the State of Oregon sent to the outside markets products as follows:
 Lumber, carloads 22,000
 Livestock, carloads 2,500
 Salmon, cases 390,000
 Wool, pounds 14,000,000
 Hops, bales 75,000
 Potatoes, bushels 1,300,000
 Dried prunes, pounds 14,000,000
 Green fruit, pounds 18,000,000
 Wheat, bushels 12,000,000
 Value of domestic exports from the port of Portland for ten months of 1900, $6,710,181

The year 1900, says the Oregonian, is the business year for the State of Oregon, all things considered, and the country at large for that matter. There have been greater yields of certain crops, certain localities have done better in their special products, but for general prosperity the year 1900 stands at the head. It is not boom, it is not unhealthy inflation; it is the vigorous result of normal development, and may be resolved into the factors—native resources, work and confidence. The elimination of any of these factors would unsettle business and create trouble.

Shipments of livestock from Oregon have been light this year. Eastern Oregon has scarcely more than half as many horses and cattle as ranged there five years ago, and the number of sheep is also less. High prices take the stock and settlers take the range. Last year's shipments were probably twice as heavy as those of this year. Ontario, which is said to be greatest cattle-shipping station in the United States, has sent out this season only about 15 per cent as many carloads of livestock as it shipped in 1899. A good many cattle are driven out from Lake and Klamath counties to the California market, and other bands go to the railroad at Winnemucca, Nev., or Terno, Cal.

In the figures for the prune output the product of Clark county, Washington, is included. The season's prune crop is the best ever grown in Oregon except that of the year 1898. The strawberry and cherry crops of early summer are considered in the shipment of green fruit.

In the statement of salmon output the pickled and frozen salmon—about 150 carloads—are included.

The movement of merchandise was never so active. Hundreds of carloads of ore go out of Eastern Oregon. All the transportation lines are crowded to the limit and cannot move freight as fast as it offers. The top notch of the fall rush has been passed, however, and pressure is slightly diminishing. The market conditions are healthy, trade is active in nearly all lines, general business is satisfactory and they promise to continue so.

China Sam has opened a new restaurant next to the Brewery Saloon, where can be had a fine meal at any time, day or night. Fresh oysters, nice juicy steaks and turkey dinners. 48-1m

RUSSIANS PRAISE US.

The "Novoe Vremya," discussing the English newspaper indictment of the United States Senate for "its unparalleled attempt to overturn the Clayton-Bulwer treaty," says: "The case is not unusual. Conditions have changed and the treaty must change, too. Russia afforded an example in 1870 in declaring that she was no longer bound by her promise not to maintain war vessels in the Black Sea."

The Boston Gazette says: "Russia is gratified by America's diplomatic victory over England. Western Europe dislikes the Monroe doctrine because it desires to grab territories everywhere. Russia, which has sympathized with America since her independence, which liquidated her American possessions to America, has nothing against the Monroe doctrine, and the sympathies have grown more cordial in China."

Woes of a Nebraska Editor.

News is scarce this week, and the newsmen have been sorely pressed to find material to fill up the paper. We can't rattle a real live news item, one of the large juicy kind, to save our blouses 'n' neck. Everything moves on in the same old way. The gang of whittlers still hold forth at their old stand on the steps of Dutchler building and talk about "tradin' horses" and how somebody got beat in guessing on the weight of a steer or a load of shoats.

This is the busy harvest time and the farmers don't come to town unless they have to, and the merchants do more or less leading in consequence. The heat drives in sweltering ripples down the streets and the mongrel cur chases the pussy cat under the sidewalk. Everybody is lazy, hot and sweaty, and ambition is at a low ebb. Why don't something happen? Plainville, Neb., News.
