About Crater Lake. Lakeview Water Co.

C. B. Watson, who has done much to make Crater Lake known to the world, submits the following to the Ashland Record:

In your issue of June 20, 1901, under the heading "Crater Lake," you reprint an article written by some one who is not informed on the subject. The writer says: "Crater Lake, situated 65 miles east of Ashland," etc. This misleads people who do not know. Crater Lake is situated in township 29, 30 and 31 south, ranges 5, 6 and 7 east. Ashland is in township 39 south, range 1 east. This makes the exact position of Crater Lake with reference to Ashland 54 miles north and 30 miles east of said city. This would be approximately the center of Crater Lake.

This writer further makes a mistake in the following language: "In the year 1853 Crater Lake was discovered by white men, though the Indians have known of it from time immemorial, and called it Lake Mystery. The whites named it Lake Majestic, and not until the exploring party, touring that country in 1886, discovered its real character, was it called Crater Lake." This is not true. In October, 1873, in company with five other men, I visited Crater Lake and wrote a description of it in the Oregon Sentinel immediately after my visit, in which its character as an extinct crater was discussed, and the name "Crater Lake" assigned to it. In 1882, while publishing the "Resources of Oregon and Washington," a magazine in Portland, I prepared and published another descriptive article on Crater Lake, in which I discussed at length its volcanic origin and speculated on the probable height of the mountain before its destruction by volcanic agency. In 1885 I delivered a lecture on Crater Lake at Portland, Or., in which I discussed its volcanic origin and gave estimates of its probable size, depth, etc. These descriptions excited the curiosity of Mr. W. G. Steel and other lovers of nature in Portland, who were thereby prompted to visit the lake, and who immediately thereafter set on foot the efforts that resulted in its survey by the United States Geological Department, and its subsequent withdrawal and the establishment of a Government reserve.

This writer says it was called by the Indians "Lake Mystery." This title was applied to it by the whites, and not by the Indians, as the word itself implies. This writer goes on to say, "surrounding streams flowing in, together with rains and melting snows, soon filled the large basin with water," etc. There are no streams flowing into Crater Lake, and but few springs to be seen on the inner rim of the lake. There are no inlets or outlets to or from this wonderful body of water. The walls surrounding Crater Lake are unbroken and precipitous, rising from the water's edge to a height varying from 1000 to 2000 feet. Writers ambitious to entertain the public in print ought to inform themselves with reference to their subjects before putting them out.

The Best Liniment For Strains.

Mr. E. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. Furnish customers within reach of their mains on the following conditions: 1st. All connections and service pipes, with necessary repairs and alterations, must be made at expense of customers. 2d. All water rates are payable on the first of each month, and if not paid, the water will be shut off at the option of the Company, and an extra charge of 50c will be made for turning same on again. 3d. The water rate is limited to one household, without an express understanding to the contrary. The habitual use of the water by others renders the subscriber liable to a double rate, and the regular house rate, besides the irrigating rate, will be charged where consumers have service cocks in use in the house, unless the Company's employees are permitted to close them during irrigating seasons. 4th. In periods of drouth no continuously running tap or leaky service pipe will be allowed. 5th. The Company disclaims all responsibility for damages that may result to customers through failure of the water supply or breaking of pipes. 6th. Irrigation season consists of two terms; first term commencing April 1st and ending June 30th. From July 1st, commencement of second term, the following rules are in force: No irrigation permitted, except from 1 o'clock P. M. to 7 o'clock P. M. daily. In case of scarcity of water in Company's tanks due notice will be given, and water can be used on alternate days only during the hours above stated. No deviation from these rules will be permitted. Parties violating them will have their water supply shut off.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF. The new Philippine tariff has received its finishing touches at the War Department, the Washington correspondent of the Tribune reports, and it will be sent by mail to Governor Taft in a day or two. It is expected it will be promulgated early next month to go into effect immediately. An important provision affecting goods in transit has been included, permitting consignees to declare all imports which shall arrive in the Philippines within 60 days after the tariff is put into operation either under the old schedules now in use or under the new duties. After that period the old military customs revenue law, founded upon Spanish law, will forever cease, and the new system, designed especially to promote United States trade, will take its place. The new law is expected to produce annually $15,000,000 revenue for the support of the insular government and to reduce materially imports from all countries except the United States and Spain, particular attention having been given to the incidental protection of Philippine industries against rivals in the Western Pacific and Indian Ocean. The government at Washington and the commission at Manila have been working over the new tariff since last August, and now that full agreement has been reached, it is expected that Congress at its new session will approve the schedules without modification and put them into the statutes.
