Sunday was the hottest day ever experienced in Lakeview. The Government thermometer at this office registered 101 in the shade, just 4 degrees hotter than it was the day before. Six wagon loads of wool from Lakeview, Oregon, were unloaded at the steamboat landing Monday, says the Red Bluff News. Altogether there were 100 bales and their average weight was about 312 pounds. The wool will be shipped per steamer to San Francisco.
We were informed the other evening, says the Cedarville Record, that in a secluded pasture at the north end of Warner valley were twelve horses with a spot on each one of them, on the thigh, about the size of a man's two hands from which the skin had been entirely removed. It is thought that the horses had been stolen and the brand removed in that manner and the horses turned in this remote place until the mutilated parts had healed. Evidently there is work ahead for the Oregon officers.
The creamery of this place is doing a flourishing business, says the New Era, and is turning out a large quantity of fine butter and cheese. Butter is made two days every week, and on the other days cheese is manufactured. The quantity of cheese turned out per day is 250 pounds, and 100 pounds of butter is made in one day. The home market is sufficient for all the products of the creamery, which makes it more profitable than to send it to a foreign market, as the freight is saved in this way.
An exchange prints the following marriage ceremony, which was said by a Tennessee squire a short time ago; "Wilt thou take her for thy pard; for better or worse; to have, to hold, to fondly guard till hauled off in a hearse? Wilt thou let her have her way; consult her many wishes, make the fire every day and help her wash her dishes? Wilt thou support and comfort her father, mother, Aunt Jemima, Uncle John and three sisters and a brother?" His face grew pale and blank; it was too late to jilt, as through the flour he sank, he meekly said, "I wilt."
