Law Provides That Every District In Every County In Oregon Is Entitled To a Library.

WILD MAN IN THE WOODS.

A Most Startling Discovery Is Made by Two Hunters in the Wilds of Michigan,

Adolph Meiser and John Slattery, two young men from Crystal Falls, Mich., who were hunting partridges on the headwaters of the Deer river, about 14 miles from that city, met what they assert was a wild man. His hair was long and shaggy and long whiskers nearly covered his face, showing that they had been growing for some time. The hunters got within 30 feet of the man before they saw him or he them, and all were surprised when the stranger snarled at them.

Meiser attempted to talk to him, but all the response he could get was: "Public, public, public." When Slattery and Meiser moved forward the stranger gave a terrible yell and darted into the bushes. He ran like a deer, bounding over the windfalls and stumps.

The strange man was large, but had become emaciated from exposure and hunger. The clothes he had on were in shreds exposing his body to view. He carried part of a gun barrel and a tent pole in his hands and when found was eating the carcass of a dead skunk. The Crystal Falls men hurried to town and reported the discovery, and a phase was organized to hunt for the man. It is thought that the man is some unfortunate hunter who has been lost in the woods and become insane from fright. The territory where the man was seen is a large stretch or woods, and a person might roam there for months without meeting anyone The posse will stay out until they find the man.
