

TRAGEDY AND COMEDY

All Mixed up Together in Such a Manner That Shakespeare Turns in His Grave.

Scene in Altars Court Room:

ENTER RAKER:

Raker:—If a man is blackballed—

The Court:—Now, I will blackball you and put you with G. F. Harris now directly. I ask you as a man now, to shut up when I tell you. The Court says it is collateral and you can't do it; I will not permit that. You will be here for the next thirty days with this witness, and now thirty-five days have been consumed upon the cross examination of witnesses here by the defense.

Spencer:—I beg your Honor's pardon—

The Court:—Yes, that is what has been done, including Sundays.

Spencer:—No sir; fifteen days of that time has been taken up by the talk of counsel for the prosecution.

Raker:—A lot of time has been taken up by his Honor on the bench.

The Court:—To keep down a fuss and muss in court; to keep down such obstreperous men as you are, asking you to comply with the rules and begging you as a man to sit in court and behave in a humane and gentlemanly manner. Now we will take a recess.

Raker:—Let us work until five o'clock.

The Court:—Now, I will not work while you are going on in any such way. I will do this; whenever you are going to have a matinee in the afternoon we will take a recess a little while, that is what will occur. Now I state this to you, Mr. Raker: You have been selected as the attorney to conduct this case, and I have patiently borne with you, your insults and outrages, that no gentleman ought to, in the interest of the client you are representing. Now, that sardonic smile upon your face is a LIE.

Raker:—Would your Honor tell me that upon the street?

The Court:—You make an attack upon me, John Raker, either in court or out, and it will be the last one you will ever make on earth.

Raker:—Your Honor states that, does he?

The Court:—Now you make an attack on me—

Raker:—Your Honor, what—

The Court, (interrupting)—Mr. Sheriff take charge of that man, and see he behaves himself.

Raker:—I am just keeping quiet, I Will West, known by his friends as "Cope," arrived Thursday last from Silver Lake on business.

Teacher:—Why were you not at school yesterday?" Willie Green:—"It was my birthday." Teacher:—"I don't stay home on my birthday." Willie Green:—"Well, you've had so many I guess you've got used to 'em." Willie remained after school.

Silvers:—"All the world's a stage." Cynicus:—"And all the men and women merely kickers."

Paisley had a prize fight, "Marquis of Gooseberry" rules, last week, between Albert Banister and "Shorty" Lendburg, for a $2 purse. Banister won in round 2.

Jack Partin and his niece, Miss Polly Myer, of Summer Lake, have purchased the herd cattle of Lon Long, of Christmas Lake.

Jack McDonald and Ike Dawson will leave it to the jury, I have not said a thing.

The Court:—Now I will put you in jail and keep you there. I will put you in there and keep you there.

Raker:—For what?

The Court:—For your insolence and insults.

Raker:—I am just sitting here as quiet as a gentleman can, I have said nothing—

The Court (interrupting)—Now stop, just stop; this thing has got to wind up. Now if you want to make an attack on me in the street, you do it.

Spencer:—Judge Harrington, he has not threatened you.

The Court:—You make it if you dare. Raker:—I do not know what you mean at all.

The Court:—Now take it back, now you make an attack on me on the street—

Spencer (interrupting)—Your Honor, we are talking about a serious matter; now Mr. Raker has not threatened to make an attack on you.

The Court:—You make it and it will be the last attack you will make.

Spencer:—He don't carry any weapons.

The Court:—I don't either, but if he is going to make an attack on me, I will see somebody else—

Spencer (interrupting)—He ain't going to attack you; I won't let him if I can help it.

The Court:—Such a statement as that, now you apologize for that, now you say I can't make that statement to you on the street—

Raker:—I didn't say that.

The Court:—You said I couldn't—

Raker (interrupting)—No, I didn't. Judge, read the record, Sir. Reporter Record is read.)

Spencer:—Mr. Raker ain't going to attack anybody on earth except in the court room, your Honor.

The Court:—There is where he ought to fight, if any is done, in the court room here.

Raker:—Now that ought to be sufficient, nobody ought to be afraid of me if I only fight in the court room. That would never scare anybody except to—

Starvation (interrupting)—I suggest we discontinue the dissertation on fighting, and take adjournment.

Wail From Ft. Collins.

Ivan D. Hamersley, Ft. Collins, Colorado:—"I received copy of The Examiner yesterday (January 17th) and read everything in it—even to the ads. It was like getting a letter from home with money in it. This is a nice enough place but not like Oregon. It's as flat as a pancake—not a hill to be seen anywhere. I'm tired of listening to whistles and train bells. I would rather hear sheep bleat and cows moo. No snow here yet, but plenty of wind and cold weather. This town is somewhat larger than Lakeview, but not like it in any respect. My private opinion of Ft. Collins would not look well in print. This place has been dead as—well, as a prisoned coyote on the Lake County desert. I will be in Oregon again before the Fourth of July if I live that long."

Deep-Sea Mine Found.

Capt. Strand, of the Santa Ana, which has just arrived at Port Townsend, Wash., reports having found a deep sea mine of unusual richness. When he weighed anchor at Some a considerable quantity of mud was thrown out, and some of the miners aboard prospected it with the result that several small nuggets of gold were found, the largest of which was worth one dollar. The Santa Ana was anchored one and a quarter miles from shore in six fathoms of water, and the captain expressed the opinion that with a deep sea dredge a large amount of gold could be secured.

FOOD FOR A YEAR.

Mutton 300 lbs.

Meat 240 qts.

Meat 100 lbs.

Eggs 27 doz.

Vegetables 500 lbs.

This represents a fair ration for one man for one year.

But some people eat and eat and yet grow thinner. This means a defective digestion and unsuitable food. To the notice of such persons we present Scott's Emulsion, famous for its tissue building. Your physician can tell you how it does it.

Will tell you a little to try if you like.

Dying Man's Last Request.

"You are dying," said the doctor to the man on his death bed. "And do you really think I am going?" asked the man. "Yes I know it," said the doctor. The dying man then turned his head and looking at the lawyer who had come to make out his last will, said: "And do you think I am dying?" "Yes I am sure," said the lawyer. The dying man then said to the doctor: "How much do I owe you?" "About $100," said the doctor. He had been in attendance only about three days. Then the dying man turned to the lawyer, who had given about three hours attention to the making of a will. "How much do I owe you?" "About $100," said the lawyer. "Well," said the dying man, "will both of you kneel on each side of my bed when I am dying?" "Why do you make such a request?" said the doctor and the lawyer. "Well," said the dying man, "it will be a great satisfaction to me to die in the same manner that my Saviour did—between two thieves."

Fifteen Mexican artillery officers have sailed for Antwerp en route to France, where they will study the manufacture and manipulation of the French ordnance. The officers, with a single exception, Col. Gilberto, are captains or lieutenants in the artillery branch of the Mexican army. They have been commissioned by President Diaz to spend two years at Cerusot and study the famous artillery made there, which has been adopted by the Mexican government in place of the German guns formerly used.

Col. Luna, in an interview, said that the Mexican army was in splendid shape. The country was free from brigands, he said, and in every way was in a peaceful as well as prosperous condition. On the day previous to his departure from the city of Mexico, Col. Luna had a long talk with President Diaz, who, he said, is in splendid health.
