Land Laws Good
Enough As They Are.

Members of the House committee on public lands exposed the hidden hand which is urging the repeal of the desert land, timber land and homestead commutation laws.

The hand, they say, is that of George H. Maxwell, president of the National Irrigation Association, who is also attorney for railroads.

The repeal of the laws named would cut off the irrigation fund at its source, as it would practically stop settlement on desert land and the sale of timber land, and make homesteads hard to get.

But it would thereby create a market for 60 per cent of the railroad land which remains unsold.

Chairman Lacey says the laws in question are good, if properly administered, and the committee is opposed to their repeal.

They'll Come Back.

The Yreka Journal says. "Coyotes are becoming very numerous in this county, doing great damage to farmers in killing calves, sheep, chickens and other domestic stock. They come within gunshot of houses, and keep prowling around still closer if seeing no persons near to take a shot at them. The scarcity of chickens and eggs is due to this pest, as farmers don't care about raising chickens to feed coyotes, as they have all the trouble and expense desired in protecting calves and sheep. Many of the coyotes are no doubt from Oregon, driven over the boundary by reason of having a scalp bounty law in that State. The coyote is a more dangerous predatory animal than the panther, wild cat or bear, by reason of its sneaking propensity in making raids unawares." Before the bounty is taken off in Oregon the coyotes will come back with a partner or two, probably, at the rate of $2 per.
