J. A. Anderson was in from the Gap yesterday.

Marion Barnes was in from the XL ranch yesterday.

Two important communications were crowded out this week.

Andy Green was in from Cottonwood yesterday. Andy says the Jack rabbits are dying off by the hundreds these days, caused by the snow and cold weather.

W. Z. Moss came in from the desert Monday with 17 head of mules, and left next day with the bunch for Willows. The carload will probably be shipped to the city to sell.

F. Flock of Klamathon, who was here yesterday, has decided to locate at Keno, where he is preparing to build a hotel and livery stable.—Republican. Mr. Flock was a resident of Lakeview several years ago and conducted a butchershop.

Up to going to press we have received no word of any change in the senatorial contest at Salem. Fulton gained one vote and Geer lost one since our last issue. Last report was, Fulton 33, Geer 16, balance scattering and absent. A change is expected at any time.

Dave Edler came over from Merrill, Klamath County last Friday on land business. Dave says Merrill is the best alfalfa country in Oregon. He is feeding some of his sheep there this winter. Irrigation works wonders on land like that which surrounds Merrill. Lake county has many such places, and the putting on of water is all they lack of being just like the Merrill county. The water is just as accessible here as there.

M. Sanders came in from the desert last Friday with a broad smile on his face. When questioned as to the cause of the wrinkles in his face, he said that 5 inches of snow had fallen on the desert before he left, and that all the sheep men out there were now wearing their face in that fashion. The desert has been quite dry up to the late storm, and without water the sheep cannot live, consequently when it snows it brings cheer to the sheepman.

The chances are very favorable that Hon. Burger Hermann, who recently resigned as Commissioner of the General Land Office, will be the Republican nominee for Congressman of this district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Congressman Tongue. Mr. Hermann, through his efficient record as Congressman in the past, is receiving very generous mention, and there seems to be no question as to his ability and fitness for the place.

Say, the Lakeview local exchange telephone system is handy, isn't it? You can call up any store in town, order your day's provisions and in a few minutes the delivery man will have them at your door. You can also call up The Examiner office and have this paper sent to you or some friend for a whole year for only two dollars. Then, again you might be in need of some up-to-date job-printing, such as letter and bill heads, envelopes, cards, or anything in the printing line, and in that case don't forget to ring us up.

By coming in just a day late, Fred Fletcher, driver on the Lakeview-Plush stage line, spoiled a good story—a story that might have been sad, to. He was due from Plush Saturday evening but failed to put in an appearance until the following evening. Two men were sent out Sunday morning from Lakeview in search of the missing driver, and when they reached Camas Prairie they found the snow six feet deep and could go no farther. They returned without having seen or heard of Fred. But Fred was alright, and came in just a day late, having stayed out one night on the trip over to Plush.

The weather since our last issue has been pretty much like winter. Up to Sunday the wind blew a gale from the north and snow filled the air in a blinding storm. People who were compelled to be out in it no doubt suffered from the severity of the storm. Monday the storm ceased, and the sun came out, and that night the thermometer registered 6 below zero. Since then the weather has moderated and more storm was threatened, but yesterday it was clear again.

Last Friday night a fire alarm was turned in to Marshal Harvey from the Pluffe camp on Bullard Creek Avenue, by Maggie, wife of Indian John. The marshal followed his guide through the deep snow to "that camp that night," and there beheld beside a burning campfire several bucks and squaws, all full of fire-water. The real fire was the fire-arm held by Susie who was so full of fire-water that she wanted to shoot Maggie "in ear," and Maggie thought the "bullets would get in it," so the marshal disarmed the native and thus put out the fire.

Representative Emmitt unknowingly created quite a sensation in the Legislature when the vote for Senator was being taken. He was not present when the roll was called at the opening of the joint assembly. During the call of the roll on joint ballot he came in and was just in time to answer to his name. He supposed, apparently, that it was the initial roll-call, instead of the roll-call on ballot and shouted "here." From most places in the House it sounded as though he had said "Geer," and there was a flutter and a craning of necks, for Emmitt has voted consistently for Fulton throughout, and people wondered what he meant by changing to Geer and whether others were about to follow his lead. All this required but a few seconds, and then the tension was relieved. President Brownell explained to him the roll-call was on joint ballot and he voted for Fulton as usual, and the only diversion of the joint session thus was quickly ended.

Origin of "Watered Stock."

The expression "watered stock," which describes so well the expansion of the stock of a company beyond the value of the property, originated, it is said, in connection with Daniel Drew, who was once the wealthiest and most unique manipulator in Wall street. Drew had been a drover in his younger days, and it was said of him that before selling his cattle in the market he would first give them large quantities of salt to make them thirsty and then provide them with all the water they could drink. In this way their weight was greatly increased and the purchaser was buying "watered stock."—Leslie's Weekly.

Portraits on Tombstones.

Local marble dealers are taking a keen interest in an enterprise, which had its origin in Denmark, for reproducing the pictures of dead persons on their tombstones, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. They say that it is very probable that the movement will spread to America in a short time. The picture-on-the-tombstone craze started among the Danes as a result of the use of artificial marble. A Danish master builder succeeded in producing a stone of such delicate tints that it was impossible to distinguish it from the natural product. The imitation of the more expensive species was found to cost far less than the natural, and is made in any form desired—columns, plain, or fluted, and capitals—as readily as flat slabs. The durability is said to be as great as that of the genuine marble. It was also found that it was possible to reproduce, by carving a picture of the deceased person, in the imitation marble, much easier and far cheaper than the work could be done with the genuine article.

J. E. BERNARD & SON.

Lakeview, January, 8th, 1903.

Dear Friends:—

We come to you again with this personal request for your trade. You want goods—we want business. Your purpose is to buy goods right. Our purpose is to sell you goods right. It also stands to reason that we are going to make our prices as low as consistent with good business judgement, in order to interest you, and, as the largest dealers in Lakeview in our line, we can not be undersold on an equal class of goods. The reasons are many and obvious. First, we buy mostly direct from factory; we buy in large quantities, ship in car lots, and in every way save you all the money possible.

Yours respectfully,
J. E. BERNARD & SON.
