

Indiana's Tall Men.

According to reliable statistics, the State of Indiana, says the Indianapolis News produces the tallest men in the world. This curious fact comes out in the records made in the War Department during the Civil War.

By carefully prepared statistics it is shown that out of 118,254 soldiers supplied by Indiana 15,947 were 5 feet 10 inches tall, 8606 were 5 feet 11, 9679 were 6 feet, 2614 were 6 feet 1, 1357 were 6 feet 2, 406 were 6 feet 3 and 330 were above this gigantic stature.

Dr. Gould, actuary of the United States Sanitary Commission, commenting recently on these unique statistics, said:

"It is evident from our statistics that the Indiana men are the tallest of the natives of the United States, and these latter the tallest of all civilized countries."

These figures seem to refute the oft-repeated statement that in the standing armies of one or two European countries the average height of its men exceeds that of any other country in the world.

A Mother's Recommendation.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy. — Mrs. J. A. Moore, North Star, Mich. For sale by Lee Beall, drug 2181.

Bull Pups Break Up Home.

Rather than abandon his bulldogs prize-winners, which he matched in pitched battles in his own kitchen, James Scott, according to his wife's petition for divorce, deserted her and his two children. The wife, Mrs. Margaret Scott, is now living with her mother on Ogden avenue, Jersey City Heights. Mr. Scott is in Kearney N. J., engaged in the business of a butcher.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott lived in Hoboken. The husband had long loved dogs, and he soon filled his home with bull puppies. These, as they developed in strength, he pitted in the kitchen, the result being at times the most sanguinary struggles. Mrs. Scott, long suffering, but with nerves unstrung, at last gave her husband the alternative, she declares, of her company or that of the dogs. Then, she charges, Mr. Scott fled. Her petition was filed by her counsel, John J. Marnell of Hoboken. — New York Herald.

Sins of Omission and Commission

Will S. Green, editor of the Calusa Sun very truthfully says: There are sins of omission and commission. When one omits to do that which he is in duty bound to do, the sin is fully as bad as doing a thing one ought not to do. In our editorial life the omissions have caused us much more worry of mind than the commissions, and still it must be allowed that no one can at all times think of just what should be done. We meet an old friend on the street; we made mention of his neighbor being in town and forget him. When we come to think of it, we regret it. And there are matters of more moment that we pass over as completely as though our mind was a blank—and sometimes we almost imagine that it is—and when the proper time passes it is too late to mend. Excuses, we feel are out of order.

The moon, that big pale luminary in the starry heavens, has been making itself quite useful lately to belated pedestrians in this nick of the woods. As the man in the moon looks down upon the frail mortals on earth one can read in his big grey eyes the thoughts he is thinking; what he would like to say to us about his bleak and cold country up there, where it is eternal ice and snow, and where vegetation is an unknown quantity. He is thinking that he would like to ask us to have that ancient incident repeated, when the "cow jumped over the moon." He would be prepared next time, and would catch her as she went over, and start a dairy of his own. Then there would be no trouble about the astronomers discovering that the moon was inhabited, as the cow's tracks could easily be observed. The stage drivers who are driving to and from Lakeview through the long weary hours of the night could wisely put in their time in interpreting the thoughts of the man in the moon, thereby gaining some long sought for information; any way they should thank the moon for so generously lighting them on their way along their long and weary paths at night.

One Thing at a Time

"I can't afford to advertise on a large scale," said a merchant lately, "and with my varied stock I wouldn't know where to begin on a small scale."

It is a common fallacy that the advertising must cover the whole stock.

In point of fact it never does, even with the most lavish advertisers, and, if it did, the result would be a jumble of prolixity. The true policy is to select one article at a time—something moderately priced and meeting the want of the day—and push that at the people.—Philadelphia Record.
