Rev. Smythe came up from New Pine Creek last Tuesday accompanied by Miss Inez Gallagher. Mr. Smythe is still conducting the special meetings in the Christian Church at that place, and this week four people joined the M. E. Church. The young men of that place are taking a great deal of interest in these meetings and one evening last week during a meeting the young men handed the Rev. gentleman a purse containing $15.00. Funds for other church purposes have been liberally donated for.

C. E. Fuller narrowly escaped being instantly killed last Saturday while working on J. W. Mikel's house. While shingling at an elevation of 22 feet, the staging gave way and he was precipitated to the frozen ground below. While he was pretty badly bruised up he feels himself very fortunate that he lives to tell the story. The fall was somewhat broken when about half way to the ground, by his striking a brace, which upset his equilibrium and he landed on his head, shoulders and hip, bruising him up pretty badly. His left wrist was severely sprained and he has been confined to his bed ever since.

Mrs. D. H. Hartson is organizing a class in vocal music, voice training and thorough bass, and pupils may come at any time to the residence of M. Wingfield. Best of references and recommendation among them one by Wiley B. Allen, San Francisco.

Reports come in from the desert that the severe weather is causing the death of quite a number of lambs and old sheep. However, the percentage of loss this winter is not expected to be very much greater than is usual every winter. The loss from the ravenous coyote will be considerably more than from any other cause, and now that the bounty law has been repealed by the legislature, coyotes will feel free to come out in the open, and their depredations will be noted on every hand from now on. They are a sassy brute at all times, but now their nerve will have no limit. "backed up," as they are, by the solons of Oregon.

We arise to ask the question: "From whom and when was the Oregon legislature given the information that the whole of Eastern Oregon wanted to trade off the scalp bounty law for the Dalles portage railway?" Whether this information was given or not, the trade has been made. We, of this section, will have about as much use for that portage railway as a Chinaman has for a cue—both mighty handy for some other fellow to take hold of and use as a lever to beat one to death with. But then, this part of the state is not considered a part of Oregon any way, so we are kicked and knocked around without any regard to justice.

Several people at New Pine Creek have been taking advantage of the deep snow in the mountains and go out each day with a couple of hounds and track wild cats. The hounds track the cats to a tree, the men scare them out and the dogs do the rest. They have made an average of two cats per day for the past week. It is said that Rev. Smythe climbed a tree with a club about two feet long, and when he reached the limb on which Mr. Cat was crouched, he sat down and holding onto the tree with one hand, attempted to poke the cat out with a stick. The cat concluded to change his position, and without permission, walked across the Rev. gentleman's lap to a higher perch. It is said that the preacher now wears his hair pompadour.

SCALP LAW REPEALED

manner and the way the repeal bill was covered up all look like an attempt to hoodwink Eastern Oregon. If we can't prove that this is a good measure, then we are willing to have it repealed."

"This is the first time I ever heard the honorable gentleman from Eastern Oregon intimate that he was not ready for a fight at any time," replied Davey. "We have reason to fear the result if we give him a day to prepare."

Burleigh's motion was then put and defeated with a big no, and the House went ahead to consider the bill.

Malarkey moved that speeches be limited to five minutes each, and an amendment to make it two minutes was carried.

LaFollett then proceeded to champion his pet bill and read figures to show that it had cost the state something like $350,000. He was seconded by Hale, who said the state would be overrun with the pests at the rate they were increasing, and Hansbrough wanted to know why, if coyotes were such pests, people of Eastern Oregon would not kill them without a bounty.

"A blind man with a ten-foot pole ought to know that this is a bad law without argument," put in Purdy.

Phelps and Emmitt both spoke warmly for the bill. Emmitt took a whack at Multnomah County by saying that instead of Multnomah County considering itself a part of Oregon he thought Oregon ought merely be tacked onto Multnomah County.

Davey advocated repeal, and then Whealdon jumped onto the repeal measure, saying that it had come to the House like a thief in the night. He complained that the bounty had caused the number of coyotes to decrease.

"I understand you to say that the coyotes are decreasing?" inquired LaFollett.

"Yes, sir," responded Whealdon.

"Well, according to the report of the Secretary of State," continued LaFollett, "they have doubled and tripled."

"That is scalps, and not the coyotes," responded Whealdon, amid great laughter.

Burleigh then made a vigorous speech against the bill and for the bounty, and said that if the matter were allowed to rest for two years more the coyotes would be exterminated.

Davey told a funny story, and the vote was then taken and the bill carried, with 38 ayes. The noes were: Blakley, Burgess, Burleigh, Cantrall, Danneman, Emmitt, Herrmann, Hume, Johnson, Olwell, Phelps, Robbins and Whealdon.

Last Thursday was Abraham Lincoln's birthday, which was appropriately observed in every city and hamlet of this glorious nation, with the exception of Lakeview. A great many did not know on what day our martyred president's birthday came, and some were not aware that he had a birthday, while others had not yet learned that he had been so cruelly assassinated over one third of a century ago. It is said that there are some people in these backwoods that expressed surprise when told that Christ was dead. However, there is a feeling of enlightenment creeping over the people out here, as it was learned that some people living in a large city on the banks of the river Willamette, nearly "Where Roll The Oregon," had discovered us, and would send an exploring party out this way just as soon as Congress could find it convenient to make an appropriation to bear the expenses of the undertaking, which really was expected to happen by the time the second centennial exposition of Lewis and Clark is celebrated in the year 2005.

J. E. BERNARD & SON.

Lakeview, January, 5th, 1903.

Dear Friends:—

We come to you again with this personal request for your trade. You want goods—we want business. Your purpose is to buy goods right. Our purpose is to sell you goods right. It also stands to reason that we are going to make our prices as low as consistent with good business judgement, in order to interest you, and, as the largest dealers in Lakeview in our line, we can not be undersold on an equal class of goods. The reasons are many and obvious. First, we buy mostly direct from factory; we buy in large quantities, ship in car lots, and in every way save you all the money possible.

Yours respectfully,
J. E. BERNARD & SON.
